FRESH FISH.

Hints on What to Buy
at the Market.

Scientists have discovered during the past few years that fish is one of the most important foods for children. Aside from its food value in protein, carbohydrates and fat, fish is particularly rich in vitamins necessary to the growing child. Any variety, whether from deep sea or fresh water, is an excellent meat substitute and the regular use of fish once or twice a week makes for a pleasant and profitable change in family menus.

When you go to market to buy fish, there are certain qualities to look for in determining freshness and good condition. Of course your nose is really the best guide to fresh fish, but there are other and more dependable ways of telling in case you do not have an acute sense of smell.

The flesh should be firm elastic when pressed with the finger and should adhere firmly to the bones. When the fish is opened, look carefully at the flesh around the large vein which runs toward the tail. If the flesh is clear, well and good, but if discoloured by blood, the fish is not in good condition.

Fish can be divided into two general groups: fat and lean. The so-called lean fish have fat secreted in the liver, leaving the flesh clear and white. After cooking, lean fish are quite dry and flaky. To this group belong cod, haddock, flounder, trout, smelts, pickerel, black bass and many others.

Cooking Methods Vary

To the fat group belong whitefish, turbot, salmon, herring, mackerel, shad, halibut and numerous others.

The way fish should be cooked depends upon whether it is oily, that is "fat," or lean. The fat fish are best baked or broiled and require no larding nor extra fat. But the lean fish can be cooked in any preferred fashion, extra fat being added.

Lean fish are particularly delicious steamed. Less flavour and nutrients are lost by this method than by boiling. After the fish is thoroughly cleaned it should be wrapped in a piece of cheesecloth, placed in the steamer and steamed until tender.

When only fish is baked it should be pinned on a rack high enough to lift the fish from the fat which cooks out. Otherwise the fish will almost stew in its own fat and become strong flavoured and difficult to digest.

Many small fish are good when broiled or fried in deep fat. Fillets of fish are nice this way too. Deep fat frying is preferable to pan frying, since less fat is absorbed in the former method and the crisp coating on the surface of the fish protects the inside from intense heat.

Keep in mind that fish should be cooked at a low temperature and never over-cooked. This is especially true if fish is boiled. Plunge the prepared fish, tied in a square of cheesecloth, into a large kettle of boiling water. Then reduce the heat and simmer until tender, allowing ten minutes to the pound.

In choosing a dessert to serve with fish, keep away from gelatines. Fish itself is rich in gelatinous substances and gelatinous dishes, although easily digested and refreshing, are not a good choice. Fish is not regarded as a "hearty" food and a dessert quite rich in calories should be planned.

THE WORLD
OF WOMEN

A FITTING BUSINESS

In order to facilitate creation of frocks for the movie stars, designers have a dummy to correct measure of each patron. The rough frock is made on the dummy and the star need not go for a fitting until the last work is to be done. Adrienne Ames is shown having a final fitting while in the background are the dummy models of Marlene Dietrich, Miss Ames and Mae West.

GLORIFYING
YOURSELF.Cleanliness in Beauty Implements.

By Alicia Hart

Is your powder puff meticulously clean? Or is the little puff that fits into your compact more than slightly soiled? It is absolutely astounding how many women keep right on using a powder puff on their faces after it is positively dirty. What's the use in cleansing your face, feeding it good creams and making up carefully at home, if you are going to dab powder on it from time to time with a soiled powder puff?

The answer is, "None whatsoever!"

Almost any compact can have its puff renewed. Don't buy just one. Buy a half dozen. For it is hard to wash them and have them come out perfectly new looking.

One more precaution about treating your face right. When you come in from the street and start to cleanse your face, do your hands first. Scrub them with a nail brush and warm water and good soap and make sure they are spotless as a surgeon's hands before you begin operations. Otherwise you merely smear your face with your hands' dirt when you put cleansing cream on it.

Hair brushes come next in line

How to Improve Picnic
Sandwiches.

When using cold meat for sandwiches, mince it; it is tasty and goes a long way. A tomato added when mincing improves the flavour and has the virtue of keeping the sandwiches moist.

A cut onion may safely be used again if placed in a basin and completely covered with cold water until required.

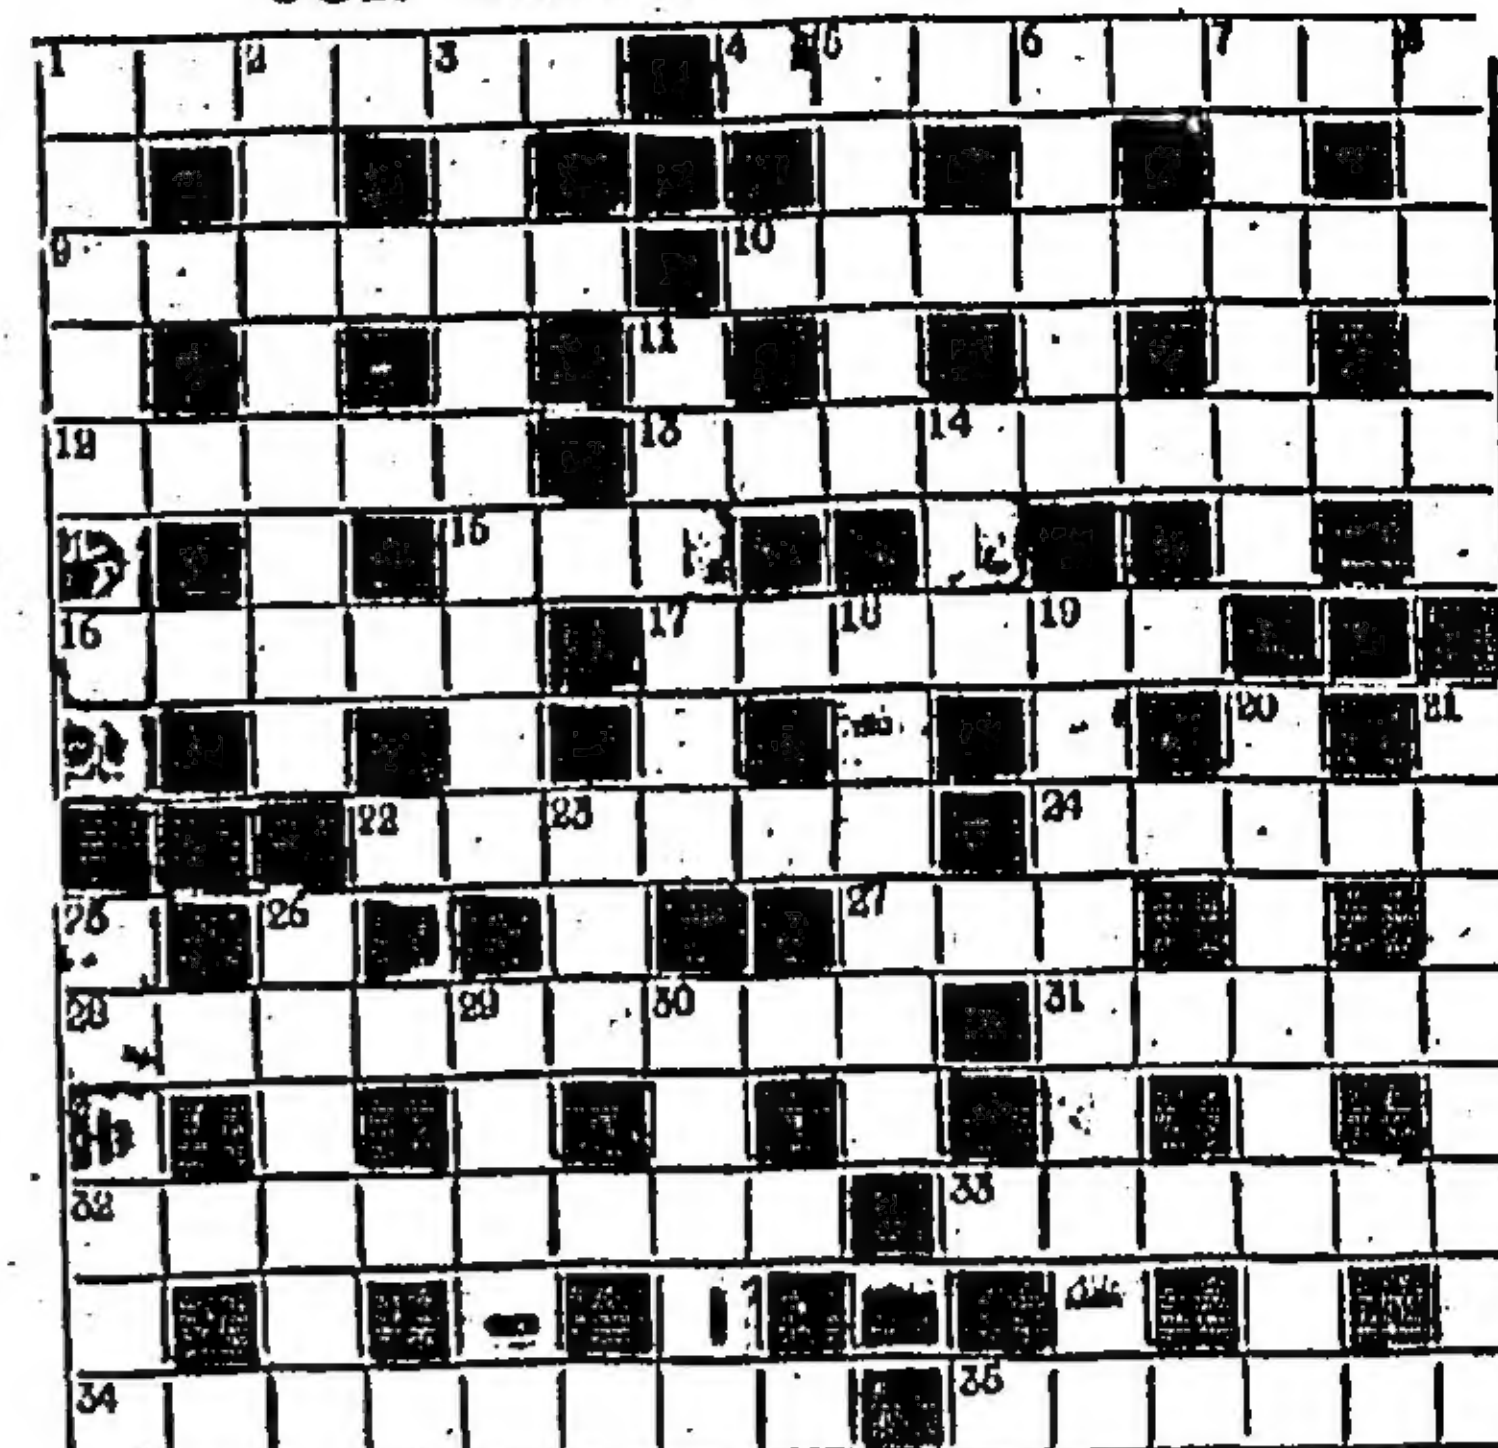

If the oven will not get hot, put about a teaspoon of sugar over the slide and that will draw the heat.

Keep your beauty jars clean and shining. Keep your powder air tight. Keep the puff that you see in your powder box very, very clean. These big ones, and particularly the ostrich ones, do wash readily and well.

Last, but important, don't keep around a lot of odds and ends of this or that cream, face lotion, muscle oil, skin tonic and so forth. Cull what isn't good for your skin, what you do not use or need, what you never did like. Keep just what you use and keep them in some order, so you build up a me-shan regime for yourself. You should be able to dream a bit about last night's party and go through all the motions of getting ready for to-day's work, at one and the same time.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY.

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is surprised when her child, hood, sweetheart, STEVE BACCARELLI, returns to New York after three years' mysterious absence. Mona contributes largely to the support of her mother, invalid father, sister, KITTY, and her half-brother, BUD.

Steve has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with DAIRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, who owns a diamond mine. Together they have made the mine, believed worthless, pay handsomely. Steve owns a large diamond called "The Empress of Paris." LOTTIE CARR, fashion model, joins Mona, Barry and Steve on several dinner and dancing engagements. Mona's brother, Bud, is under obligations to BUCK HARKINS, night club proprietor and gangster, who plots to steal the huge diamond.

Steve suspects this. He returns and is forced to confess he meant to steal the diamond. Knowing the gangster may kill the boy for his failure, Steve decides to send him to South America to work at the mine. They drive to Boston where Bud boards a boat. Steve explains this to Mona next day, warning her she must tell no one.

Several days later Barry invites Mona, Lottie and Steve to spend Sunday at his uncle's palatial country home. Mona is falling in love with Barry.

CHAPTER XVII

The air was sharp and glowing. Nestling at Steve's side, warm in her woollen sport suit, Mona considered the world about her.

On either side in the Fifth Avenue traffic were other expensive motor cars. The women in those cars were dressed beautifully. The men looked confident, distinguished. No suggestion of poverty or hardship here. Nothing of the life Mona herself had known.

Steve had pulled out of that life.

Lottie was pulling out too. Her employer had raised her salary three times in the face of offers from competitors. And Mona was determined to pull away from Third Avenue poverty.

It had been Lottie who had found the blue sport dress Mona wore to-day. "Get it," she advised. "It's a bargain and a real buy!"

Mona had bought it. Girls in the stratum of society to which she aspired bought their sport suits by the dozen. For Mona it took scheming and saving to buy one.

"But there isn't a debutante who'd look as much a queen in that outfit as you do," Lottie had said warmly.

At 55th street Steve halted the car to wait for Lottie. Twenty minutes passed before she appeared. Then indeed she was a vision, dressed in maroon to set off Mona's blue.

"I suppose I draw the rumble seat!" Lottie exclaimed. "All right" (waving a hand toward Mona). "I wouldn't rob you for the world!"

Steve started the car again and they plunged into the park. Past the mall, the pond, out again into 110th street and finally, leaving the city behind, on to Westchester. Roads dipped and swayed toward them. They drove through wooded plots, through brown fields. Here and there they ducked into villages, were delayed by straggling, dressed-up Sunday crowds.

Steve drove with his eyes on the road ahead, a speculative frown touching his forehead.

"This is glorious!" Lottie called to them.

Suddenly they reached a ridge, overlooking one of many broad, shallow valleys on the highway. A lacework of bare trees attempted to hide the village beyond, its few spires pricking into the sunshine like gleaming bayonets.

Further still, near the broad summit at the north, was an estate. On a terraced hill, above lawns and shrubberies, there towered a huge house. A copy of a French chateau of the last century. A golf course had been laid out beyond the buildings. The terraced walls dropped to a stream below where in summer ducks, swans and peacocks would sun themselves.

"That's Twilands," Steve announced briefly, nodding toward the house.

"You've been here before, Steve?" Mona asked.

"Several times."

"Why it's like the movies!"

crowed Lottie, in ecstasy. "I've always wanted to go inside one of these big houses where you have to send out a searching party to locate guests straying from the room without a guide. I've always wanted to semaphore a person sitting opposite me at dinner—!"

"It's a fine old place," Steve interrupted.

Indeed it was a fine old place, Twilands, even from a distance, bespoke years of tradition, years of culture and care. Mona could picture the small Barry struggling about that lawn in white rompers, swimming in the pool or jogging along the country roadside on his pony.

She thought of him returning here from school bringing his friends. At the time she and Steve had been awing along Third Avenue on the backs of ice wagons, and being shooed from the neighbour's steps with their tops and jackstones, Barry had been living in this beautiful place.

"Barry should appreciate his good fortune!" Lottie declared.

The fortunate young man met them just within the gate, emerging from the shrubbery as the car whirled inside. Steve jammed on the brakes swiftly. Barry was bareheaded, a dog nosing at his heels. He was dressed in heavy boots, riding breeches and a sweater that was not new.

"It's great to see you!" he exclaimed, springing on the running board and pushing the dog aside with one large brown hand. "Drive on Steve. We'll have another breakfast if you can stand it. I've only had coffee. Then we'll take a tramp or something."

The car crossed the gravel stretch and halted under the porte cochere where Mrs. Faxon, the Townsend's housekeeper, met them, smiling. The girls understood at once that she was more than an employee. In her 25 years of service Mrs. Faxon had been governess, secretary and now "hostess" was probably the word to express her position. As Steve put it later, she "ran the place" even when his uncle was there.

Barry introduced them, standing with his arm about Mrs. Faxon's shoulders. She was a charming woman, somewhat over 50, with soft white hair and a face far younger than her years. Lottie, with great restraint, refrained from mentioning the rather obvious resemblance Mrs. Faxon bore to a motion picture duchess.

She greeted the girls charmingly. "You would have thought Barry had never had guests before," she said. "I was afraid he'd walk half way to White Plains to meet you if you didn't come soon."

She added that Barry's uncle was away but that they would try to do the honours in his absence. Mona caught the solemn wink Barry cast in Steve's direction, and smiled.

"The boy has every fireplace in the house blazing high," Mrs. Faxon said, leading the way through the panelled hall to the living room. Here a cosy fire was burning. There was a piano, comfortable chairs, tables, reading

NANTIENMEN FALLS.

EVACUATED AFTER HEAVY
JAPANESE BOMBARDMENTPeking, Apr. 28.
An official communique confirms the Chinese reports of furious fighting on the Nan-tienmen front this morning.General Hsu Ting-yao, the Chinese Commander of the forces, in a report despatched to headquarters at 2.30 p.m. yesterday, says that the Japanese infantry and artillery, assisted by eight aeroplanes, continued to attack the Chinese centre and the two flanks on the Nantienmen front with utmost violence."Most of our fortifications were demolished, but our troops offered a spirited resistance," the report adds. "At some points the Japanese bombardment was so violent that it was impossible to repair the damaged fortifications."
"However, our troops are exerting their utmost efforts in holding their positions at many points with hand-to-hand fighting."
—Reuter.

Nantienmen's Fall.

Peking, Apr. 29.
The latest despatches from the front admit that Nantienmen is now in ruins from the Japanese bombardment and has been evacuated. The Chinese troops have taken up new intact defences south of Nantienmen.—Reuter.

Destroyed Beyond Repair.

Peking, Apr. 30.
An official communique issued last night states that after 10 days of battering from the Japanese artillery, the Chinese defences at Nantienmen have been destroyed beyond repair.The battle fought at Nantien-men was one of the most fierce engagements since military operations started inside the Great Wall. Casualties were very heavy during the last two days, owing to the Chinese protection being smashed away. Consequently, the Chinese troops began yesterday moving to new lines which will be held as Nantienmen was held against the Japanese onslaught.

have arisen, and the general conviction is that he is not here.

Spies' Activities.

Peking, Apr. 28.
Without special authorisation no one will be allowed to proceed to the fighting front, according to an order issued by the Branch Military Council which states that during the last few weeks many communists and Chinese spies employed by "the enemy" posed as representatives of public organizations and went to the front for the purpose of spying on Chinese positions.Anyone proceeding to the front without the permission of the military authorities is liable to arrest.—Reuter.

DEDICATED.BISHOP OFFICIATES AT IMPRESSIVE SERVICE"O Lord Jesus Christ, give Thy power, we pray Thee, to us Thy servants, and grant that this House, now opened for Thy service, may always be filled with Thy presence, and may ever remain a refuge for Thy faithful people. Who with the Father and the Holy Ghost, livest and reign-est, one God, for ever and ever.
Amen."With this prayer solemnly uttered, the Bishop of Victoria, Right Rev. Ronald Hall, dedicated the new Chapel of St. Peter, in the Seamen's Institute building, yesterday afternoon. The new chapel takes the place of the old Church of St. Peter, West Point.At 3 p.m. the bell rang, and with the congregation standing, the Bishop knocked three times on the door, and said:—"Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up ye everlasting door, and the King of Glory shall come in."The Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, Chaplain to the Mission, standing in the Church, asked:—"Who is the King of Glory?"The Bishop:—"The Lord of hosts, He is the King of Glory."The Bishop, who was accompanied by the Rev. E. W. L. Martin (Chaplain, in the absence, through indisposition, of the Rev.
N. V. Halward), the Pro-Chancellor of the Diocese (Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, K.C.), and Mr. T. H. R.
Shaw, representing the Committee, on entering the Chapel was petitioned by the Rev. Mr. Waldegrave to consecrate the Church.His Lordship offered a prayer, after which the procession of clergy proceeded to the sanctuary, during the singing of the hymn,
"Holy, holy, holy." Clergy participating were the Revs. W. Walton Rogers, E. G. Powell, E. L. Allen,
A. D. Stewart, G. K. Carpenter, Kau Yan-lee, and N. Chamberlain, R.N.Following the singing of the hymn Veni Creator Spiritus, the Bishop dedicated the Church.
During the hymn "We love the place, O God," the Bishop prior to each verse proceeded first to the font, then the place where the prayers are said, where the scriptures are read, the place for the laying-on of hands in confirmation, the place of solemnization of matrimony, the preaching of the Word, the Holy Table, and in turn said an "exhortation from the Bible."

The Consecration.

Consecrating the Chapel, the Bishop said:

"Let us pray."

O God, the Sanctifier of all things, Whose loving kindness never faileth, Who rulest both in heaven and in earth, keeping mercy for the people who walk before the presence of Thy glory; graciously vouchsafe, we beseech Thee, to hallow this building set apart for Thy holy mysteries; mercifully illumine and brighten it with Thine own glory, and pour down Thy blessing upon it;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.
Amen."Following the Rejoicings, during which the hymn of praise,
"All people that on earth do dwell" was sung, the Bishop proceeded to his chair in the Sanctuary.Sir Henry Pollock then read out the sentence of consecration, and the document was signed by the Bishop.With the congregation standing, Bishop Hall said:
"By virtue of our Sacred Office in the Church of God, we Ronald Owen, by Divine permission
Bishop of Hongkong and South China, do now declare to be consecrated and for ever set apart from all profane and common uses this House of God, under the dedication of The Chapel of St. Peter, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.
Amen.""Now unto the King, Eternal, Immortal, Invisible, the only wise
God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen."After the Blessing, the Bishop, clergy and choir walked to the vestry, the congregation singing the Nunc Dimittis.Mrs. G. W. R. Griggs presided at the organ, while six choristers of St. John's Cathedral and Mr.
Griggs, also attended.At the conclusion of the service of dedication, the visitors were served with refreshments in

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG"Everlasting punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.The Golden Text was: "Is not destruction to the wicked? and a strange punishment to the workers of iniquity?" (Job 31:33).Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord. . . . And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water. . . . and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. . . .
The ungodly are not so: but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. . . . For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous:
but the way of the ungodly shall perish." (Ps. 1: 1-4, 6).The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Through the wholesome chastisements of Love, we are helped onward in the march towards righteousness, peace, and purity, which are the landmarks of Science" (P. 323: 6-9).

GERMANY AND DISARMAMENT

Germany, more than any other country, needs to be reminded of the close relationship between the political and economic problems of the day. Herr Hitler may be given a fifty years' mandate, may have every good intention and a sound constructive programme for internal use, but unless he is prepared for international co-operation in all matters of common concern, his hopes and his promises will remain unfulfilled. We may recognise the nature of his problem. He has risen to power on a wave of reaction against years of suffering in an economic crisis incomparably worse than in most other countries. Germany has turned to bold leadership in her search for relief. But Herr Hitler promised more than he could perform. He cannot antagonise the rest of the world and bring prosperity to the Reich at the same time. Some of the illusions of his supporters must be disappointed. He cannot satisfy them at both ends of the scale. Single-handed effort will not restore prosperity to Germany. An essential prelude to world industrial recovery is the removal of international suspicions. Failure to achieve a substantial measure of success at the Disarmament Conference, therefore, must irreparably damage the prospects of achievements at the World Economic Conference and if that fails, the depression must deepen with consequences that no-one can foresee. No matter how strong the hand at the helm, economic distress will spread in Germany unless the Reich is prepared to play her part in the measures now being formulated for setting the world on the road to recovery. Obstructionist tactics at the Disarmament Conference, prolonging, probably intensifying the uneasiness in Europe, will effectively prevent international harmony when the nations come to discuss economic issues. It is highly perturbing, therefore, to find Germany demanding the impossible at Geneva. No-one professes that the British Plan is perfect. It is faulty in several respects and cannot expect wholly to satisfy anyone. But it boldly submits figures—for the first time in years of discussion—which would reduce Europe's armies by almost a million men. It recognises the justice of Germany's claim to equality and grants her substantial increases. It is essentially an emergency plan. It seeks to furnish a breathing spell. It is, moreover, delicately balanced. Any amendment violently disturbing one of its parts would wreck the whole. But Germany, unless week-end discussions and the strong moral pressure which Mr. Norman Davis ventured to bring to bear effect a change of attitude, seems determined to insist upon the full substance of equality. She wants, in other words, the right to re-arm immediately. The under-currents of fear which the British Plan was expressly designed to allay would, in such circumstances, be intensified a thousandfold. Only reckless defiance of realities could permit Britain or the United States to assent to such an amendment. Surely Germany's commercial instincts should be strong enough to govern the situation. The interests of trade and industry depend upon international confidence and confidence depends upon an end to the armaments race in Europe. The British Disarmament Plan improves Germany's relative status immensely even if it does not go the whole way. Unless Germany means to make use of her military equipment, tangible equality will mean nothing in the next five years. But five years of peace and prosperity, with the gradual dissipation of distrust and fear, would open the field for a further substantial reduction of armaments down to Germany's level. That is what Britain means by equality.

Body-Line Bowling

After the hot-air outbursts by the Australian Press concerning body-line bowling it comes as a relief to find the Australian Board of Control tackling the question in a thoughtful and constructive way. They intimated, after the first of the recently concluded cricket Test matches between England and Australia, that they regarded "body-line" bowling as not only dangerous to batsmen but harmful to the spirit of the game, and they have backed this up by drafting a rule prohibiting such bowling. They seek the co-operation of the M.C.C. for its inclusion in the laws of cricket and there seems little reason to doubt that such a co-operation will be forthcoming. The difficulty confronting the M.C.C. over the problem is that they have never seen the effect of body-line bowling on wickets such as exist in Australia; another danger is the confusion which obviously exists between what is meant by body-line bowling and the leg theory. To many it is one and the same thing, yet this obviously cannot be so, for Root of Worcester and "Farmer" White of Somerset have all adopted the leg-theory in international and County cricket and have never been accused of dangerous bowling. Australia's suggested rule may seem to put too much onus on the umpire, but consideration of the problem and the most suitable method of treating it, leaves one convinced that the proposed ruling is, perhaps, the best.

A Boy's Pocket

"Out of the everywhere into the here" was intended as a tribute to babyhood. But sight-seers who were privileged to view some collections from boys' pockets at a recent hobby show may have been tempted to rededicate it. To attempt to dwell on the variety of objects which find their way into a boy's pocket would be quite futile for anyone who does not come frequently into contact with them. But be assured—whether anything can stale it or not—it is a variety worthy of Shakespearean comment. What surprises the adult, however, is the adult's own talents for cluttering up table drawers, cellars, attics, and most other available spaces—is not so much the variety of things in a boy's pocket as their apparently utter uselessness. The adult will tell you that when he was a boy he too may have acquired pocket collections, but that they contained at least a few objects with meaning. It will be most tactful of you if you refrain from asking him to enumerate some of them. A boy's pocket! And the changes the years may bring to it. How easy to slide back to those corduroy "whistle-breeches" days, but how difficult to prove to Sonny that the hoards which made your pockets bulge have yielded you no profits since. For you are not sure of this. You cannot be. It is boy's business.

INTO THE DEPTHS OF SPACE

By REV. D. MacDONALD, S.J.

A child coming to this city for the first time and unexpectedly seeing the splendour of the magic mantle of starry lights that night flings lightly over us might easily imagine that some group of stars had in the silence of the night stolen softly from the firmament of heaven and come down to earth at this place to see its beauty for themselves.

He might think that these stars, weary in their age long flight, wish to rest here awhile and that nothing but the great orb of day rising up from the East could succeed in frightening them away. Hongkong by night is really like a great cluster of stars settled on hillside, valley and bay.

Let us imagine ourselves to-night taking ship in some fleet aeroplane such as no mortal man could dream of constructing, one that can soar upwards and away with the speed of thought, one that fears not fog nor rain nor stormy winds, nor dreads long distances, nor has any terror of landing, because it flies with the wings of thought and lands with the soft gentleness of kindly thoughts.

Let us take ship in such a machine and rise up from this city of ours and turn our course towards the Philippine Islands. As we get clear we gaze back in the darkness and all we see is the gay galaxy of lights we have left behind. We can pick out the very spot we started from, noticing that its light is just only one of that brilliant group of lights that mark Hongkong. After crossing a void of darkness we come in sight of Manila—it is still dark and again all we see is a city of lights amid the darkness, another group as it were of starry orbs come to earth. Singapore comes next within our ken, then with the speed of thought we are at Brisbane, and so from city to city until we have traversed the whole surface of the globe and back to Hongkong. What we have seen as we skimmed with birdlike flight over the wide expanse of the earth's broad surface were the myriad clusters of lights of the cities in the world and nothing more. Far apart these clusters were, and insignificant in their sizes, when compared with the great spaces that lay unit between them. The vision our minds retain as we return is just that of the gleaming groups of lights with which the night sky of the earth is bespangled.

No sooner have we returned from our flight, which is but a trial run on our machine, than we bodily decide on a more ambitious flight. As we have just finished a superficial survey of the earth by night we now wish to make a similar survey of the vast universe, in which we live.

All excited and buoyed up with the thrill of our new flight we set forth and in the twinkling of an eye have passed the moon, the sun and even the stars that have gazed down upon us nightly. As we look back we see something similar to what we saw as we left behind the lights of Hongkong on our trial trip. We see that the sun, the moon, the earth, the planets and a myriad of stars from a group or colony or swarm of bright orbs like the lights of some immense Colonial city and that we are now flying across a great empty void. Soon we pass near another immense group of lights, another colony of stars like the one we lived in and have left. We do not wish to pause, but onward we go, spurning the fabulous distances as we go, passing starry groups that look like the city lights we saw on the dark earth's surface, then into vast dark and empty voids where there are no lights. How small those stars swarms look compared with the empty spaces between! Yet one of those groups, the one from which we set out, contains the sun, the planets, moon, and the stars, which we see rightly in the firmament. We find that all the space in which we have been travelling with the speed of thought is just a great void with almost countless star colonies, or groups of luminous orbs floating therein. These star groups are, as it were, universes within the universe. They are called island universes. We might call them star cities because they look to an outsider like the lights of a city by night from the air. As we approach our own star city, or island universe we pick out not without difficulty our own sun, one of a myriad stars that form that group.

But before we re-enter this city of stars that is our own, we just encircle it rapidly to gauge its shape and size. We find it is not a group of lights on the flat like an earthly city, but lights massed like a swarm of bees flying in close array, not, however, forming a globular shape like a round football but rather, as it were, a star cloud having the shape of a round and somewhat flattened cushion of immense size, somewhat like the shape of a circular watch or lens or the sparo wheel of a motor car in its case. The dimensions of this immense wheel shaped or lens-shaped swarm of starry orbs we note—its width and its thickness, and we jot them down for future reference. Then we enter into the midst of that swarm of luminous orbs and just at its very central point we pause in our flight like a hawk poised for the plunge upon its prey. There we gaze outwards in all directions at the lights of this wheel shaped floating city of stars. Looking towards the rim we see the stars in greater numbers than when looking towards the flat sides. We see stars all round us, but in a vast ring shaped belt, at whose centre we are poised, we see the stars so thickly spread that the belt just seems a white streak of gauzy luminosity. Leaving the centre of our star city we pass the sun at terrific speed and land softly in our own earth and find that the white belt that we saw marking the rim of our floating wheel-shaped star city was what we used to know as the Milky Way.

As we alight we keep the vision of the universe which we have so quickly seen. It is like the vision of the cities of light we saw on our first trip over the earth's dark surface. Now our vision is of a universe of starry swarms, colonies of stars, groups or families of stars that always retain their group formations. Each group being at immense distances from its neighbours. We saw that our own sun, the earth, moon, planets were in one of these star cities or island universes.

These star swarms are called in Astronomy, Nebulae, i.e., clouds, because to us they seem like little clouds, faint and far away. In reality, they are immense things. They are nebulae at various stages of development. My comparisons speak somewhat inaccurately of them but that so because we made only a superficial flashlike survey of them in our thought like trip of exploration of the universe. It would be confusing if we didn't make a general survey first, so let our inaccuracies go for the time being.

Our own island universe or star city is also like the others a nebula or the remains of one. Since that belt of lights across the sky which marks the edge of our wheel shaped star groups is called the Galaxy, our star group is called the galactic system. The other island universes are called the extra-galactic nebulae because they are outside the galactic system or group of stars of which our

The Very Idea! SPEAKING OF FASHIONS

By Eddie Kelly Et. Cie.

"THE Women—God Dress 'em!"

We were out at Repulse Bay yesterday afternoon. What we saw there convinces us that no one can call Hongkong girls spineless.

No, sir! All those backless bathing costumes we saw yesterday convince us otherwise.

We he-men may have a lot to put up with, but it looks as if our women have to bare a lot more.

We hasten to add, however, that we aren't objecting, so long as the display is interesting.

Just quietly, Mrs. K. shakes a wicked vertebrae, and will wreck homes this summer.

And speaking of this year's fashions. We notice that the females will also brook no half measures in the matter of hair this summer.

Either they're going to keep it really short, or really long, or vice versa, as the case may be.

So that as it may, woman's crowning glory is her own affair and it's no biz. of our whether she takes the lun or the plait.

To us, who rise to heights seldom associated with poodle-faking and females generally, it's immaterial whether their hair is judged or crimped, or done up in sky-scraper.

What we are concerned with is our own private and personal marvel.

The headache is quite entitled to get her hair off if she likes, but let her keep her hands off ours.

We ask you. How can a literary genius tear his hair in a fine frenzy when his wife has been there before him?

In these days of permanent waves, a woman must be a heroine to her hairdresser, but that doesn't entitle her to take heroic measures with her husband's hair.

And then there's our pants. Next thing that'll happen in Hongkong will be the invasion of the Marlene Dietrich trousers. Imagine one's embarrassment then on reading a description by "Abigail" of a fashion parade at an A.D.C. first night:

Mrs. Edward Kelly, the best-dressed woman in Hongkong, arrived looking sportive in a dashing suit of plus-fours, while Eddie stood by her side looking too, too divine in pink organdie set off by a chic bolero trimmed with pink. Pete Watkins created a positive furor in an old-world frock of flowered muslin which he assured me he had run up on his own sewing machine."

What we mean to say is—well, you know how it is! A man can't be too careful these days.

A CORKER.

At a Middlesborough Fair recently, there was a sideshow at which a man, after putting a cork into an empty barrel and then blowing into the bung-hole, succeeded time after time in blowing the cork of the cask.—News item.

No doubt it was a very clever feat, but if the man had put his mouth to the cork-hole and blown the cask out of the bung-hole or if he had put his mouth into the cask and blown the bung-hole out of the cork-hole or if he had put his cask to the bung-hole and blown the cork out of his mouth, or if he had put the bung-hole to his nose and blown the cask out of the cork-hole or if he had put the cork out of the bung-hole or if he had swallowed the cork and blown his mouth out of his ear or if he had put his mouth to the bung-hole and blown it out of the cork-hole or if he had put himself through the cork-hole and blown the cask out of the bung-hole or if he had stuffed the cork-hole into his mouth and blown himself out of the bung-hole and filled the cork-hole with the bung-hole or if he had blown the cork-hole through his nose and the bung-hole, thus making it a blowhole or if he had decided to blow both himself and the cork through the bung-hole, it would have been a far more remarkable performance.

Well, well, well. We must look into this matter. Abyssinia.

"Your father said I sholdn't mention it, but nobody remembered his tobacco money this week."

A MAGISTRATE PERPLEXED

PROBLEM OF AIDING AND ABETTING

INTERESTING CASE

Does sitting in the back seat of a car constitute aiding and abetting?

In order to consider the point, Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, adjourned until tomorrow, a case in which three Chinese, an apprentice, a boiler repairer and an electrician, were charged with aiding and abetting Wong Hong-shun, unemployed, to drive a car belonging to Mr. A. R. Cox, of the Hongkong Electric Co., Ltd., Wong pleaded guilty to charges of driving the car without a licence and without permission.

Traffic-Inspector C. F. Alexander, prosecuting, said that at 8.30 on Saturday night, Mr. Cox left his car in Connaught Road Central opposite the Star Ferry wharf. He went to Kowloon, and on returning at 2.30 a.m. found the vehicle was missing. He engaged a rickshaw and went to the different car parks, and being unable to find the car, went to Police Headquarters.

The Inspector-on-duty circulated a message giving a description of the car. Sergeant Fryer, of the motor patrol section, who happened to be at Aberdeen Police Station, when the message was given, set out in search. Along the Island Road, he met the car coming towards him. He drove it to Central Police Station. The other three occupants, said the prosecutor, must have known that the car did not belong to the defendant as he was unemployed.

DIFFICULT TO PROVE.

The Magistrate—How can they aid and abet sitting in the car?

Insp. Alexander—They must have known the car did not belong to the defendant. They also had a young girl, aged 15 years, with them, but she had not been charged. These people were taken for a joy ride round the island.

The Magistrate—The question is how are you going to prove that they definitely knew he did not get permission.

Insp. Alexander—it is fairly difficult to prove.

His Worship remarked he would like to consider the point as to whether sitting in a car constituted aiding and abetting, and remanded the three defendants to tomorrow on bail of $50 each.

First defendant, who pleaded guilty, was fined a total of $175 or eight weeks' hard labour in default.

Inspector Alexander—I might say, that a number of cars have been taken and practically the whole lot have been dumped in Wan-chai. I understand that is where this man lives.

Mr. Wynne Jones said he did not think a deduction of that nature was fair.

MONEY CHANGER CHARGED

COUNTERFEIT COIN CASE

Chu Kee, a money changer, of 140, Connaught Road Central, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, on charges of uttering 30 counterfeit Chinese twenty cent pieces, possession of 58.

Mr. F. X. D'Almada, sen., appeared for the defence, and the hearing was fixed for Friday at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. D'Almada—Would your Worship reduce bail. It is $2,000.

His Worship—Any objection to reduction?

Det-Insp. Elston—I am entirely in your Worship's hands.

Mr. D'Almada—He is only an assistant.

His Worship—I think on the face of it, he should know what is a counterfeit coin.

Mr. D'Almada—That is for argument later.

His Worship—I think we will leave the bail as before.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

UNITED STATES TO MAKE IMPORTANT PROPOSALS

London, Apr. 30.

Following a meeting of the Preparatory Committee of the World Economic Conference at the Foreign Office, Sir John Simon, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, announced that His Majesty the King had been graciously pleased to indicate that he would personally open the Conference.

The Conference has been convened for June 12, and will be held in the building of the new Geological Museum at South Kensington.

Mr. Norman Davis, the representative of the United States, informed the Organising Committee at to-day's meeting that immediately after the Conference was convened the American Delegation intended to propose a tariff truce.

The Organising Committee has agreed to circulate the terms of this proposal, with the invitations for June 12, to the States which have, so far, been invited to the Conference.—Reuter and British Wireless.

AMERICAN PROPOSALS.

Sweeping Modifications of Trade Barriers Likely.

London, Apr. 30.

No new tariffs, exchange restrictions, import quotas or prohibitions against dumping, including export quotas, are some of the details in the United States proposals for a tariff truce, which have been communicated to the Preparatory Committee by Mr. Norman Davis.

The Conference will decide the duration of the truce, but the United States Government desires it to operate until agreements have been reached by the Conference and ratified by the respective governments.—Reuter.

Dollar and Sterling

Washington, Apr. 29.

On behalf of the United States, Great Britain and France, Messrs. Roosevelt, Ramsay MacDonald and Herriot have agreed to a temporary currency truce, where Germany and other countries will be asked to join.

The truce will be effective simultaneously with the tariff truce, before holding the World Economic Conference.

According to the New York Times, sterling and the gold dollar would be pegged at an average market value over a period of several months.

Meanwhile the British Economic Advisers are remaining in the United States in order to watch the possible effects of the American inflation proposals.—Reuter.

FAREWELL GIFTS TO CLUB MEMBERS.

MESSERS. E. W. L. HOGGIN AND J. S. MCINTOSH

A double presentation took place at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club on Saturday afternoon, when Mr. J. S. McIntosh and Mr. E. W. L. Hoggin were the recipients of gifts from the club on their impending departure from the Colony.

Mr. F. L. Rapley, President of the Club, in eulogising the deeds of Mr. Hoggin, dwelt on the number of offices he had held since he joined the Club in 1927, and remarked that Mr. Hoggin was a good bowler, a good tennis player, a good singer, a good sportsman and a "jolly good fellow" all round.

At the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Rapley presented Mr. Hoggin with a chiming clock on behalf of the members of the club.

The Vice-President, Mr. B. Wylie, followed, making reference to Mr. McIntosh's long association with the Kowloon Bowling Green Club. He referred to the fact that Mr. McIntosh had been President of the Club at a momentous period of its history.

That was in 1926, when the new club house was being constructed. He referred to the many offices Mr. McIntosh had held, and the amount of work and advice given by him at all times in the interest of the Club.

Mr. McIntosh's gift from the Club took the form of an English leather suitcase.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh leave the Colony on May 10, and Mr. and Mrs. Hoggin and family on May 20.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF.

IT IS TO THE INTEREST OF ALL GOOD MEN THAT THE COMMONWEALTH SHOULD BE SAFE.—Cicero.

The Ben Line s.s. Benecoch left Singapore via Manila for Hongkong on 22nd April and is due to arrive here tomorrow.

The semi-finals and finals of the Army Open Individual Championships and of the Novices Competition, will be held at the open-air ring at Shamshuipo Camp on Wednesday next, commencing at 7.45 p.m.

Miss Ruby Mow Fung, Miss Margaret Rice, Miss Margaret King, Mr. G. S. Rice, Miss Rosalind Wong, Mr. Henry Ung, Miss Margaret Stickleland and Miss Tan Lanyo will be among the performers at the concert to be given at St. John's Cathedral Hall on Thursday next, by pupils of Mr. F. Mason. The concert is to commence at 5.30 p.m.

Some wild ideas regarding newspaper reporting are held out in the production "The Front Page" now being screened at the King's. Reporters are seen playing a silent game of poker while waiting for a scoop to drop into their laps, and when one does, like manna from heaven, it sends them into a paroxysm of activity in which one comes out on top, just because he happens to be at hand when the subject of the scoop chooses to appear at the right moment.

MANCHUKUO AND C.E.R. ON OWNERSHIP

They stated that inquiries had been received from a number of railways that are parties to the International Railway Convention asking the possibility of availing themselves of the C.E.R. services for the transportation of through freight between Europe and the Far East.

The railway administration, having regard to the interests of the C.E.R. and while respecting the interests of the State, still awaits definite explanations and the removal of the obstruction that has been created at Manchuli station. As is well known, the administration has received no intimation from the authorities in regard to this matter. Notwithstanding duty to reply immediately to the inquiries received from European railways in regard to through traffic, the administration has refrained from giving any information. It is awaiting our reply and mutual reassurances.

MANCHUKUO RESPONSIBILITY.

"The organizations preventing through traffic between Europe and the Far East are the Manchukuo authorities, particularly those representatives of the Ministry of Ways and Communications under whose instructions the police at Manchuli carried out illicit measures damaging to the interests of the C.E.R. and those railways which are parties to the International Railway Convention. Hoping it is our purpose to obviate the C.E.R. breaking any of its international obligations, I trust you will induce the authorities at Manchuli to revoke their arbitrary instructions, so that the administration may notify parties to the International Railway Convention that direct through traffic has been restored."

TREMENDOUS DAMAGE.

M. Kuznetsov goes on to state the viewpoint of the Soviet Government in regard to the disputed cars and locomotives, as set forth in the recent statement by Mr. Karakhan to the Japanese ambassador in Moscow, Mr. Ota; and also in the letter addressed to the diplomatic agent of the Manchukuo government by Mr. Slavutsky, Soviet consul-general in Harbin, in which he declares that the Manchukuo authorities, using alleged property rights in the C.E.R. as a pretext, committed a number of violent acts directed in the first place toward the undermining of the normal working of the C.E.R., and which caused serious losses to the Soviet interests, while the Manchukuo section of the C.E.R. Board carried out any steps to secure the interests of the railway. Moreover, there had been tremendous damage to rolling stock as the result of disasters on the eastern line of the railway. Nothing was done about this by the Manchukuo section of the Board. They likewise failed to secure the return of the railway wharf in Harbin, and no steps were taken to ensure protection of the personnel of the railway or the latter's property.

NORMAL WORKING.

In conclusion, M. Kuznetsov expresses the hope that Mr. Li Shao-keng will take the necessary steps to secure an adjustment of the questions raised so that the necessary conditions for the normal working of the C.E.R. may be created. He emphasizes that the Soviet representatives are interested in seeing the normal working of the C.E.R. restored so that the best results may be produced for both parties on the basis of a strict adherence to the appropriate agreements and regulations.

sun is one. The stars we usually see with the naked eye are almost only the stars of our own group and not those of any other star group, just as we here in Hongkong see our own city lights and not the lights of Manila or Singapore or New York or London. Very few of these extra-galactic nebulae can be seen with the naked eye. But with the aid of a powerful telescope we can see very many of them. They seem to be distributed more or less uniformly throughout space. They are mostly of definite and regular shape and are easy to identify. These lazy, cloudy looking nebulae, examined by a powerful telescope, are shown to have the edge regions shown with spots of light and some of these spots are known to be stars. The central regions of the nebulae seem to be of luminous gaseous matter, matter destined one day, perhaps, to develop into full-grown stars, some parts are actual star clouds already formed.

We have seen in this our preliminary trip over the Universe that the earth on which we live is by no means the centre of the Universe, that the sun is not the centre either, that the sun is in fact even the centre of the galaxy, the system of stars of which we are a part. The sun is just a common star, its apparent size being due to its relative closeness to us. We have not discovered really if there are any other stars in the Universe, and we have not come to a boundary of our trip beyond where there were no stars for though we flew with the speed of thought we could not come to such a boundary, for though could not bring us with certainty in our trip beyond where scientific observation has reached.

Altogether, in our trip around and about this vast universe we came upon about two million of those nebulae or star cities as I called them in our preliminary flight. This number is thus twice the number of people there are in Hongkong and Kowloon. The chances of our colliding with any of them was infinitesimally small for in fact we were very far apart. In fact we got the impression during our trip that space was almost empty for the average distance between these star systems we found to be about two million light years. Now a light year is the distance light travels in a year the rate of 186,000 miles per second. The distance light would travel in a month is staggering to think of, and what of that travelled in a year! And if we multiply the distance it travels in a year by two millions, we get the average distance between those island star systems of the Universe. The distance between the group of lights of Hongkong and the group of lights of Manila, fades into nothingness when compared with the tremendous, thought-wearing distances between the island universes of the stars. The nearest distance as is well below the average distance away from us being only 650,000 light years away. That is to say, if you take historical times on this earth as starting back 4,000 years, the light that started from the nearest nebula at the beginning of history has only travelled the half of one per cent of its journey and history will have to repeat itself about 200 times more before that light can arrive at our planet.

Now to come back to our own galactic system. The sun is distant from us 93 million miles, and from the sun to the centre of the galactic system is about 17,000 light years. The sun is not on the edge of the galactic system, nor at its centre, but well within it and is surrounded on all sides by stars. The distance across this wheel shaped galactic system from edge to edge is 220,000 light years. No wonder the stars, in themselves, look so small to men in the nearest star to us, within our own galactic system, is 25 million million miles away, i.e. about 25 thousand times as far away as the sun, and it takes 4½ years for the light of that star to reach us.

The number of stars in the galactic system, not to speak of the other two million similar systems out-beyond, is estimated as up to 300,000 million. So that if this galactic system were farreached out among the people of the earth to-day, each would receive for patrimony or plaything a give of about two hundred starry-orbs.

Our earth is comparatively insignificant amongst the galaxies of the universe, insignificant in size, but the mental power of the human inhabitants so deeply is something far surpassing mere bulk or mere distance in its magnificence. It is good to get out into the open spaces of the country, it is refreshing and broadening, so too, a visit to the great open spaces and the stellar intellectual vision beyond parochial proportions to cosmic proportions and even to the touching of the infinite.

NON-STOP FLIGHT.

COBBHAM'S AMBITIOUS PLAN TO REACH AUSTRALIA

London, Apr. 29.

Sir Alan Cobham has expressed complete satisfaction, after his first trial flight at Portsmouth, with the Airspeed Courier monoplane that is being equipped for his non-stop refuelling flight to Australia.

The machine is a low-wing monoplane of the type built for passenger and airmail work, and normally carries fuel for six hours at a cruising speed of 143 miles per hour.

In Sir Alan Cobham's machine, space has been provided for only two instead of six passengers, the extra space being utilised for fuel tanks. Five tanks in the wings give a total fuel capacity of 288 gallons, enough for about 26 hours flying without refuelling.

On the proposed Australian trip, the monoplane will refuel while in flight from four or five aircraft, which will meet it at pre-arranged fixed points.

A feature of the machine is the retractable under-carriage, which, according to Flight Lieut. Stainforth, who made the first tests of the machine, adds 40 miles per hour to the speed by reducing the air resistance.

The machine is fitted with an Armstrong Siddeley Lynx Major engine, which develops a maximum power of 242 h.p.—British Wireless.

ANOTHER FAST

GANDHI ANNOUNCES DETERMINATION

Poona, Apr. 30.

Mahatma Gandhi has not yet finished his fasting in the cause of the untouchables.

From the goal at Yeravda, announced yesterday that on May 8 he will begin a fast of 21 days in connection with his campaign for the removal of untouchability.

The fast, says Gandhi, will be "unconditional and irrevocable."

Gandhi's decision to fast is interpreted by observers as an expression of dissatisfaction at the progress of the high caste Hindus' efforts to remove untouchability.

It is feared, in view of Gandhi's reaction on his week fast last September that three weeks will mean certain death.—Reuter.

LAWN BOWLERS MAKE START

DEBUT OF POLICE AND I.R.C.

The debut of the Indian Recreation Club and the Police in the second division of the Lawn Bowls League on Saturday was signalled by each sustaining defeat.

But both displayed some useful talent, and the Indians performed creditably in holding the Hongkong Electric to a dozen shots.

The Yacht Club, last year's runners-up achieved a useful performance in visiting the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, and taking away both points. For this they had to thank McFarlane's rink, which eclipsed Davidson's four to win by 22 shots.

The Recreation showed no mercy to the Police whom they entertained and won by no less than 50 shots. The Civil Service opened the season with a decisive victory over the K.C.C. holding an advantage of a dozen shots. Jack's was the only K.C.C. rink to win.

Full results were as follow:

Completely Outplay Lincolns

TAM KONG PAK AND WONG MEE SHUN EACH SCORE
BRILLIANT GOALS

Soldiers' Forward Line Fade Away

(By "Veritas")

The more one sees of South China the more one is forced to the conviction that they stand pre-eminent in Hongkong football. And by this I am not depending merely on their record of matches lost and won or trophies bagged in one or more seasons, but upon the quality of their football, which, when analysed, indicates a scientific study of the game which places it two or three classes above any other type of football in the Colony.

This was exemplified against the Lincolns on Saturday.

South China won by three goals to one. If they had scored another three nobody would have been surprised nor the team flattered. It was one of the most clear-cut results of the season, and in negotiating this hurdle as they did, I cannot see how South China are to finish anywhere else but top in the league.

COMPLETE MASTERS.

Frankly the game contained such little incident that it does not call for much comment. South China were the masters in every department and in every phase of the game.

It was more particularly noticeable in the forward line contrast. The Lincolns were hopelessly unenterprising, unimaginative and unresourceful.

Their chief sin of commission was bad passing and of omission refusing opportunities. Individually there was not a forward capable of shooting from anywhere beyond twelve yards range, and as they only got as near the Chinese goal two or three times during the game, it can be readily understood that they had little hopes of scoring goals.

Hocquard was a disappointment. A foot injury early on seemed to upset his confidence, and even when given a clear run and plenty of room in which to centre, he continually mis-kicked.

Ridley saw a lot of the ball, but did not make very skillful use of it, and Higgins was virulent without being in the slightest bit effective. Harding and Baldry were rarely in the picture.

BETTER IN DEFENCE.

The Lincolns were far more impressive in defence.

Heath, apart from his blunder which gave South China their second goal, gave an active display between the sticks and kept the score down. Nevertheless, in the last five minutes of the game he was beaten three times in rapid succession, only to see the ball strike the framework and rebound into play.

Turner and Ash were keen workers and refused to budge an inch, whilst Dudley, Cork and Belt offered useful assistance although their work was confined to breaking up the Chinese attacks and little else was shown in constructive play.

South China excelled in all departments. The defence was steadfast and the half backs brilliant. Leung Wing-chui was inspired in the pivotal position, and the support given him on the flanks by Young In-chen and Lee Kwok-wai left no doubt as to the immeasurable superiority of the Chinese in this part of the team.

Fung King-cheung has regained all his old time skill in leading the attack and his glorious passes to the wing paved the way for more dangerous attacks than any other movement among the home forwards.

TAM'S HEADWORK.

Tam Kong-pak's headwork was a feature of the game. In spite of lack of stature, he invariably beat his opponents to the ball, timing his jumps perfectly. He scored two clever goals crowning an afternoon of fine endeavour.

Wong Mee-shun was another schemer, although I still feel that he is a better half back than forward. Nevertheless he scored a perfect goal—a real gem of a shot from over 20 yards range taking the ball on the volley. Ip Pak-wa was very well handled by Turner, but Ng Po-ku enjoyed more time, light by reason of the openings given him by Fung and Wong, who made his work very easy with wonderfully directed passes.

South China led two-nil at the interval, Wong Mee-shun and Tam Kong-pak netting, and they added a third through Tam, before Harding, in the last minute, obtained the Lincolns' solitary point.

OTHER LEAGUE MATCHES

EIGHT AGAINST THE SAINTS

The Artillery finished the season's programme in whirlwind fashion, and scored eight against St. Joseph's, who replied but once. So one-sided was the game, and so ineffectual the opposition, due to the weakened team the Saints fielded, that its interesting features were confined to individualistic achievement.

In this direction Edmunds came in for some notice. He scored four goals, three of them in succession. The Artillery were right on top from the start. St. Joseph's, without the services of Marques in goal (still suffering from an injured foot) and the Gosano brothers, could find no way of countering the determined work of the Gunners, and after conceding four goals in the first half, gave up the unequal contest.

S.W.B. Improve Goal Average

Apart from the two points which it gave them and consequently helped them towards the runners-up position, the chief value of the Borderers' 7-1 success over the Recreo was the effect on the soldiers' goal-average, which is already superior to that of the Artillery, and may eventually be the means of disposing the gunners from second place in the First Division.

Three more goals by Jones constituted one of the features of the game which, apart from the Borderers' pronounced superiority, was fairly featureless. The Borderers scored at will. The Recreo intermediates had no means of stopping the soldiers' attacks, and from the start it was just a case of how many the Borderers would score.

Club Unlucky

The Club and Navy brought the second division season to a close when they met at the Valley, the Navy winning, rather luckily, by the odd goal in five. On the run of the play a draw would have been much fairer.

Elsworth, Blair and Sayer were outstanding for the winners, and the Club were well served by Ralston, Punccheon and Robertson. Brooks opened the Navy account from a penalty, after missing with his first kick, but Robertson equalised, only to see Elsworth gain the lead for the visitors before the interval.

Lawson put the Club back on level terms late in the second half, but Elsworth in the closing minutes secured the winner.

Day's Biggest Surprise

The biggest surprise of the day, although it had no effect on the championship, was the defeat of the Lincolns, second place holders in the third division, by South China, who not only scored twice without reply, but, should have, on the run of the play, scored several more. The Lincolns had to play second fiddle throughout, the dazzling movements of the Chinese finding weak links in the defence armour of the soldiers. Lee Wing-on and Lee Sin-wing scored for the winners.

FAMOUS CHINESE GENERAL

OPENS NEW BATHING PAVILION

DEVELOPMENT OF CHINESE A.A.A.

The handsome new bathing pavilion of the Chinese Amateur Athletic Association, at North Point, catering for over 5,000 members, was declared open by General Tsai Ting-kai on Saturday afternoon in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering. Long before the official ceremony, crowds gathered at the club-house awaiting the arrival of General Tsai Ting-kai, the Commander of the famous 10th Route Army.

The General, accompanied by Mr. Chan Lim-pak, President of the Association, drove by car, and on his arrival crackers were fired.

Among the distinguished guests present were the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, General Cheong Chee-kong, President of the Chinese National Boxing Association in Nanking, who has come to Hongkong and South China for the specific purpose of teaching the Chinese art of boxing and self defence; Mr. Leung Put-yue, Vice-President of the Association and Mr. Tang Shu-ku.

Others present included Mr. E. W. Ralston, Hon. Secretary of the Hongkong International Amateur Swimming Association, Mr. F. W. T. Ross, former Hon. Secretary of the Victoria Recreation Club, Mr. Wong Kam-ying, representing the Chinese Bathing Club, Mr. To King-shan of (Continued on Page 9.)

ATHLETIC FALL TO PIECES

A piece of bad luck early in the game caused an extraordinary reaction to the Chinese Athletic against the Navy yesterday, and they were beaten by six goals to nil.

The whole team became upset when Koo Fung-cheung, after being fouled in the penalty area shot into the net, but the referee awarded a penalty which Ho Chof-yin missed.

Thereafter the Navy had the game in their pockets. Langmead and Skinner took advantage of errors on the part of the Athletic defence to give the Navy a two-nil lead at half time, and a blunder by Li allowed Langmead to score again shortly after the restart. McPhee added a fourth from a scramble, and Langmead helped himself to two more to bring his own tally up to four.

The result was the biggest surprise of the week-end.

K.C.C. TENNIS TOURNAMENT

FEW WEEK-END MATCHES

HUNG'S SUCCESS

Owing to lack of co-operation by competitors, disappointing progress was made in the Kowloon Cricket Club tennis tournament during the week-end, only eight matches being played.

W. C. Hung, last year's runner-up achieved a splendid performance in the Handicap Singles "A", when he eliminated E. C. Fincher. Hung owed 30 and Fincher 40, and the match, which went to three sets was decided only after the third set had gone to 22 games.

N. A. E. Mackay scored two successes in the Junior Championship and gained entry into the third round. He beat D. S. Green on Saturday and J. S. Smith yesterday.

FINCHERS WIN.

The most important match yesterday was the handicap doubles encounter between the Fincher brothers and G. C. Burnett and C. I. Stapleton. The former won after the full three sets had been played.

It is the desire of the organisers to conclude the tournament in the course of the next fortnight, and competitors are therefore asked to do their utmost to play ties off during the week. Next week-end will be devoted to outstanding matches, and a programme for Saturday afternoon and Saturday will be drawn up.

The complete results for the follow:

EVERTON WIN THE CUP

MANCHESTER CITY BEATEN 3-0 IN A THRILLING GAME

LEAGUE PROBLEMS STILL UNSETTLED

London, April 29.
For the second time in its club history, Everton won the English Cup when they defeated Manchester City in the final at Wembley Stadium today by three goals to nil in ideal weather conditions before a crowd of 92,000 spectators.

His Majesty the King was not present owing to the inclement weather, but he was represented by H.R.H. the Duke of York.

The Stadium was rapidly reaching its capacity crowd of 92,000. Scores of policemen lined the track and a similar number of cameramen fought for advantage points behind the goals. The band of the Scots Guards accompanied the community singing, popular air, many rattles joining in the choruses.

The teams were given a great welcome when they "tried the feel of the pitch," which was excellent, but slightly greasy as the result of slight rain. The sun, however, came out as the players went off the pitch, and transformed it into a patch of shimmering emerald green.

Tilson, of Manchester City, was unfit and thus caused a reshuffle of the City's line-up, Marshall coming into inside right and Herd taking the position of centre-forward.

Conditions were ideal when the Duke of York shook hands with the players prior to the start.

Dixie Dean won the toss and took advantage of the sun.

At the kick-off, Toseland made ground but Sagar cleared with a long kick down the centre. A hot bout of scrappy play then ensued on the Everton right wing where Goldard and Dunn tried the strength of Bray and Dale.

McMullan set the City forwards again in motion, but Sagar cleared Cowan's long shot. The City were, however, back again, and Toseland forced a corner, but Sagar again cleared a low shot near the post.

Everton's Policy.

Everton's method of attack was to get the ball in the air, but over-eagerness spoiled good work. Thrills abounded, Dean alternately shooting and heading just over, while Cresswell cleared a dangerous free kick from Brooks.

The game was very even until Cann let in Stein, but Dean failed to gather his pass from three yards range. A moment later Britton, taking a free kick, hit the crossbar, and the ball bounced out to Stein, who hooked into the net in the 40th minute of the game. The interval arrived without addition to the score.

At the resumption, the City men were quicker on the ball, and had Cresswell kicking hurriedly, while Sagar made a remarkable save from Toseland's cross-shot. However there was still something behind Everton's policy of keeping the ball in the air for a high centre from Goldard enabled Dean to head the leather past Langford five minutes after the resumption.

Everton now played real football. A glorious right-wing movement ended in Dunn causing Langford to leap frantically to keep out a terrific drive.

Manchester Undaunted.

Toseland and Brooks were the leading lights of the Manchester attack which was revived in an encouraging manner despite the arrears but the veteran Cresswell played a great game, being here, there and everywhere.

The ball was quickly carried from end to end, while the football, if lacking something of artistry, was thrilling and full of incident. Langford brought down the "house" with a brilliant save from Dean, slinging himself full length on to the ground in doing so.

Everton's right wing attack and Dean's persistence scored Manchester's doom, for Dean worried their defence into conceding a corner which Goldard placed direct to Dunn, the ball flying into the net at lightning speed off the inside right's head. This goal was scored nine minutes before the finish.

Neither side extended themselves in the closing minutes and the whistle blew with Everton winning by three goals to nil.

The usual enthusiastic scenes were witnessed as the Duke of York presented the Cup and medals to the winners.—Reuter.

the Chinese Civil Servants' Club and Mr. Tsung Wan-kai, of the South China Athletic Association.

Associations History.

Before introducing General Tsai Ting-ku, Mr. Chan Lim-pak, gave a brief history of the Association. Commencing with only a few members, the Association had now become the largest in the Colony, its membership being well over 5,000.

Mr. Chan said the erection of this magnificent new pavilion, by far the best on the North Point water front, had occupied a period of two years.

General Tsai said he was very pleased and honoured to open the new bathing pavilion which was the finest he had seen.

He gave a brief history of the sporting side of the Chinese nation and said it was up to those in Hongkong, and those who were members of this powerful Association, to keep up the prestige of their nation.

He declared the building open amid applause.

The Hon. Mr. Kotowall, also spoke and congratulated those who were responsible for providing 5,000 members with such a magnificent bathing pavilion.

Imposing Structure.

The Pavilion from outside is a very imposing structure, being built with a red brick, and in old English style. The building is divided into two compartments, which are fitted up for the use of ladies and men members of the Association.

The ladies' section is divided up into innumerable cubicles, with showers at the rear of the division, while the men's section, instead of having cubicles, is one large compartment with lockers fitted on all sides. Showers have been constructed in the rear of the dressing room, while modern sanitation is now being fitted.

The front of the Pavilion has a broad verandah. The length of the swimming area is approximately 25 metres with low and high diving boards. It will be possible to play water polo a few yards from the Pavilion verandah at either high or low tides.

A water-polo game was played between the Senior and Junior teams, while a relay race between selected teams and an exhibition of diving by promising members were featured in the afternoon's aquatic programme.

A Chinese Theatrical play completed the day's proceedings. During the intervals the band of the Chung Sing Benevolent Society rendered selections and light refreshments were served.

THE CATECHISM FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

BISHOP VALTORTA'S TALK AT WAH YAN COLLEGE

The Catechism as a basic text for the spiritual and moral education of the pupil, was discussed by Bishop Valtorta when distributing the prizes to winners in the recent Catechism competition amongst the various Chinese Catholic Schools in the Colony, at the Great Hall of Wah Yan College, Robinson Road, on Saturday afternoon.

At "At Home" was held by the Chinese Catholic Young Men's Society, the guests including Fr. De Angelis, Fr. Gallagher, S.J., Fr. Burke, S.J., Fr. Ngai, the Mother Superior of the Italian Convent, the Mother Superior of the French Convent, the Mother Superior of the Precious Blood Convent, and many of the nuns from the various institutions.

Mr. Shek Chung Sun, Chairman of the Society, welcomed the Bishop.

Bishop Valtorta said: "This day is Catechism Day, and this is the first occasion on which it has been observed in Hongkong. I hope and pray that it will be kept every year, I hope and pray that it will be observed every year for as long as the Catholic Church is in existence, and that is for as long as Hongkong will stand."

I hope that this day will be kept more solemnly than any other prize-giving day. Catechism is the most important subject that is taught in schools. I hope that teachers and pupils will take a great interest in this subject and in this day.

What It Teaches.

"When pupils are at school they are taught to fit themselves for a decent and comfortable life in this world. How much more important is Catechism than other subjects taught in schools, for it teaches us to fit ourselves for the next world."

"Catechism teaches us to know, to serve, and to love God, therefore we must love the Catechism. Pope Pius XI, when himself a catechism teacher, used to prepare the small chimney sweeps of Milan. Let us learn from his example to teach the Catechism to poor children."

"I offer my congratulations and thanks to all teachers of the Catechism, and on behalf of Christ, himself, I dare thank them. They will gain great merit before God. I wish them also every good in this life."

Fr. De Angelis translated the speech into Cantonese, and himself spoke on behalf of the students.

The Prize Winners.

Senior Champion: Pui Ching (Italian Convent).
Runners-up: St. Paul's Institution.

Junior Champion: Ching Kau (Precious Blood Convent).

Runners-up: Tak Ying 2nd Branch (Precious Blood Convent).
Distinctions are awarded to the following:

Misses Chau Kit Tak, Tsang Yuk Hing, Leong, Chi Shau, Lui Fung Ngai, (Italian Convent), Lui Yuk Fun, Lui Kam Tai, Wong Kam Tai, (Tak Ying School, Tsui Yuet Hing, Cheng Yuk Ping, Fung Kit Ling, Ma Yuen Yun, (St. Paul), Yim Kai Yan, Pang Yik Yu, Tsang Shu Ngo, (Ching Kau), So Yuet Hing, Yuen Wai Kwai, Sin Yat Fook, Lam Yeuk Lan, (Tak Ying 2nd Branch), Master Chan Yee Yan, Leong Hon Cheun, (Kui Lap), Hui Wai Kang, Chu Kwai Mui, Ho Wai Lin, Chan Fung Lin, (Pui Ching), Lau Wai Shim, Leong Fong, (Tak Ying Middle School), Leong Sam Mui, (Yeung Tak School), Tam Ming Wan, (St. Margaret's School), Chan Fung Hing (Tak Yan School).

The afternoon's programme included music and a play "Two Wounded Soldiers" which were much enjoyed.

CATHEDRAL WEDDING.

GRIFFITH—MACFADYEN.

Two well-known local residents were married at St. John's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Frances Barbara Macfadyen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Macfadyen, became the bride of Dr. Gerald Victor A. Griffith, of Dublin, Ireland. The Rev. A. D. Stewart officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gracefully dressed in a Princess robe of ivory liberty satin with full sleeves and train cut in panels. Her long Brussels net veil was held by a wreath of tiny orange blossoms and finished with clusters of the same flower, completing an extremely pleasing effect. She carried a bouquet of beautiful selected lilies.

Daffodil shades were chosen for the bridesmaids, the Misses Helen Knill and Betty Laine, and the flower-girls, Misses Athole Dovey and Elizabeth Newton, all of whom wore dresses to harmonize with that of the bride. The bridesmaids' gowns were finished with velvet sashes and cloche hats of tassel straw. Their bouquets were of larkspur. The little flower girls wore Victorian dresses, organdie caps and carried tiny posies of larkspur.

Mrs. J. E. Dovey was matron of honour, while Mr. D. L. Prophet discharged the duties of best-man.

Following a reception at 4, Basilea, Lyttleton Road, the residence of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. Griffith left for Taipo where the honeymoon is being spent. For her going-away dress the bride wore a sapphire blue ensemble, with hat, bag and shoes to match. The beautiful dresses worn by the bride, bridesmaids and flower-girls, as well as the going-away dress, were all creations by "Eunice".

VARIETY CONCERT.

PERFORMANCE IN AID OF CHILD WELFARE CENTRE

There was a fairly large attendance at the concert at Volunteer Headquarters last night, the funds of which are in aid of the Child Welfare Centre, Indian Troops. Scenes from the well-known Indian play "Leila-Majnun" were presented in the second half.

Instrumental items were contributed by members of the Jats, while the Hongkong Singapore Brigade, R.A. provided an amusing comedy. Mr. J. K. Ma, assisted by two violinists, delighted with some Chinese music, and Professor F. Gonzales won much applause with his playing on an ordinary carpenter's saw. He also scored with guitar selections. A wrestling match was also staged between the Indian soldiers.

After the interval, the play "Leila-Majnun" a story of lost love, was performed. A love which began in childhood days is broken up when the young man is thought to be insane, and the girl is forced to marry a Prince of Arabia. Majnun, on hearing of the betrothal, becomes really insane and ends his life in a wood. His lover dreams of his death and she commits suicide. The dramatic spells of this play were well conveyed by the cast.

BISHOP'S BUSY DAY

LEAVES FOR SHANGHAI AFTER CHAPEL DEDICATION

Bishop Hall spent a busy day yesterday. In the afternoon, he left aboard the German ship Sauerland for Shanghai, where he is to attend a meeting of Chinese Christians.

Yesterday morning at St. Andrew's Church, the Bishop confirmed 19 candidates, and preached an inspiring sermon. At 3 p.m. he dedicated the new Chapel of St. Peter, immediately after which he left to board the ship.

It is understood the Bishop will be away for an indefinite period.

lamps. Everything was fresh, livable and cosy.

As they entered a dog rose from the hearth, and wagging his tail, waddled toward Barry. A maid appeared and led the girls to a room upstairs to remove hats and powder their noses.

In the ruffly, taffeta bedroom Mona and Lottie expertly repaired damages of the journey through the wind.

The maid shook out their wraps and hung them carefully in the closet, indicating that when they were needed again she would bring them downstairs. She straightened the gloves flung on the dresser, rescued Mona's handkerchief from the floor and quietly departed.

Lottie ran a comb with practiced skill through her carefully scalloped blonde hair, cupping her hand carefully about its edges, crouching toward the mirror as she remodelled her scarlet lips.

"If you let this chance slip, you're a fool!" Lottie announced abruptly.

Mona glanced up in amazement. "What chance?" she asked, her eyes wide.

Lottie walked to the window and looked out over the wide meadows. "I don't really mean that," she said. "This isn't a chance—it's an opportunity."

She wheeled suddenly toward Mona. "Don't let a school girl crush you of all this! Don't let your friendship for Steve keep you from seeing that Barry is crazy about you. All this, Mona, is yours for the taking! You don't even have to ask for it!"

Mona laughed. "Barry isn't in love with me. Don't be silly! He flirted with me at the office, but that doesn't mean anything."

Lottie lifted eyebrows that were regarded "by the trade" as 100% perfect. "And Steve," Mona went on, "is—it sounds silly—but he's just a friend."

"That may be," returned Lottie. "I don't know. But Barry Townsend is in love with you." She struck her little finger with the forefinger of the other hand meditatively. "He moons around whenever you are near and beside that—he told me so!"

"Told you so?"

"Practically."

Lottie opened the door and the faint odour of coffee reached them. They could hear Barry's laugh. Steve's admonition to the dogs. Someone called: "Breakfast!" but Mona did not stir.

"Barry told you he was in love with me, Lottie?" she demanded. "You—you didn't ask him?"

"I should say not! He told me so without the slightest assistance."

"When?" demanded Mona, incredulously.

Lottie considered. "Let me see. Just one week ago. It was last Monday at 5:30 sharp."

"Where?"

"Over the tea table. At Sherry's."

DIARY DISCOVERED.

Florence, Apr. 30.
Hinkler's diary, recording the names of the places passed during his flight, was found in the pocket of his machine, with a note adding that he proposed to fly over Mount Laverna and then down the Adriatic coast to Brindisi.

Hinkler's watch stopped at 3 p.m., which must have been the time of the crash.

Although the machine caught fire, the petrol tanks are still partly full, so it is evident that the storm must have put the flames out quickly.

BAKER'S COMPLAINT LEADS TO PROSECUTION

A Chinese woman appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court on Saturday morning, charged with keeping a "sly" brothel at 267, Queen's Road West. She pleaded guilty and was fined $75, or six weeks.

Detective-Sub-Inspector A. H. Elston, of the S.C.A., said the prosecution was brought about as the result of a complaint made by a baker on the ground floor, who stated that the customers had to pass through his shop to get to the brothel.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The foolish player plays what is termed "poker bridge." While this may win one or two hands, it will surely lose in the long run. The more finished player always figures the percentage of chance on a particular play. If you are going to lose more than you can win, then the odds on the play must be greatly in your favor if you are to make that play. One of the most clever percentage plays that I have seen this year was played at New York by Mr. Charles H. Goren of Philadelphia.

The Bidding

Mr. Goren in the South opened the bidding with one diamond. West passed and North, his partner, responded with a one over one force, namely one heart.

In response to the one heart bid, Mr. Goren bid three clubs. This showing of a "second suit and a jump-shift bid is a mild slam try. West passed and North went to five clubs—another jumper bid showing extreme strength. Mr. Goren then bid five no trump.

These were all very powerful bids and indicated that both partners were endeavoring not only to reach a small slam, but a grand slam. North responded with seven clubs.

Mr. Goren was playing in a duplicate match. At rubber bridge one could be satisfied to play the hand at seven clubs, as the difference between clubs and no trump is only slight. But at duplicate bridge you must not only

♠ J-7	♦ A-Q-10-7-4-3	♣ 8-4-2
♥ None	♠ K-Q-7-4-3	♥ 9-6
♠ K-10-9-6-3	WEST EAST	♠ J-10-7-5-4-2
♥ J-8-5-2	DEALER SOUTH	♥ 6-2
♦ 9-8
♣ J-5
♠ A-Q-5
♥ K
♦ A-K-Q-6-3
♣ A-10-9-8

play the hand at the maximum contract but you must arrive at the correct suit declaration. No trumps count more than clubs and Mr. Goren wished top on the board, so he now bid seven no trump.

The Play

West's opening lead was the jack of clubs. Against a seven bid, West would have been foolish to open his fourth best spade, as undoubtedly it would be leading directly into a tenace position held by the declarer.

With the jack and one club, he could lead the jack and not sacrifice any card that might be in his partner's hand, although both opponents have shown strength in clubs.

It is not always the best procedure to attack against a seven bid with your longest and strongest suit, but is sometimes better to throw the lead to the declarer and wait for developments.

The club jack was won by Mr. Goren with the ace. He cashed his king of hearts and led the ten of clubs, overtaking in dummy with the king. Now he tried for the heart break by playing the ace and queen, but on the second heart East showed out, discarding the deuce of diamonds.

A small club was then led and won by Mr. Goren with the eight. East and West each discarding a small spade. Mr. Goren cashed his ace, king and queen of diamonds and on the third diamond, West discarded another spade.

Mr. Goren discarded two hearts and a small spade from dummy. East followed with three diamonds but now had the diamond suit stopped.

Mr. Goren had a perfect count on the hand. With five spades in the West hand and three in the other, Mr. Goren reasoned that the chances were five to three that West held the king of spades, and therefore his finesse would lose; but he saw that he had a squeeze on the West hand if this were true.

He therefore played his nine of clubs. West was forced to discard a spade, the club was overtaken in dummy. The seven of clubs was led from dummy, the five of spades discarded by the declarer and West was helpless. He could not throw the jack of hearts or dummy's ten would be good, so he let go his ten of spades.

Mr. Goren's next lead was the jack of spades from dummy. He went up in his own hand with the ace of spades which caught West's king and he made his grand slam at no trump by winning the last trick with the queen of spades.

A well played hand for top score on the board.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

During the production at Twickenham Studio of "Puppets of Fate," Ben Welden was called upon to play that comic little instrument known to most of us as the Jew's Harp. But although practice makes perfect Ben was not perfect enough when the film had to be shot. Fortunately Lester Gard, the make-up expert at the Studios, was discovered to be an old hand at playing this nifty little instrument and stopped the picture on the side of the set while Ben Welden, upon whom the camera was focused, went through the appropriate finger and mouth movements. That's how films are made!

During the long run of the piece as a Broadway stage hit, it was discovered that women are among the first to applaud "The Front Page," the fast-moving newspaper thriller which is now showing at the King's Theatre.

"The Front Page" originally written for the stage by those "bad boys" of Chicago newspaperdom, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, has been brought to the screen by Howard Hughes and Lewis Milestone, director of "All Quiet on the Western Front." It is realistic to a degree, and reveals the fascinating, human, and dramatic exploits of reporters, who stop at nothing in their loyalty to their papers.

Naturally, it has been stripped of all convention and hokum, and unfolds on the screen all its boisterous and blistering splendor.

The unconventional love-story woven into this dramatic tale of back-stage newspapering may account, too, for the amazing feminine interest in "The Front Page." When Hildy Johnson, a star reporter, desperately in love with a girl, tries to quit the newspapering "racket" so he can turn "respectable" and settle down, and his managing editor refuses to let him because he is too valuable a reporter, you have situations which appeal to every real human instinct.

Adolphe Menjou, in his first departure from the type of impersonations which made him famous, plays the part of Walter Burns, a ruthless, debonair managing editor.

"Mischief"

Ralph Lynn is certainly Britain's Prize "Ass and long may he hold his title. He is as unique in his mannerisms as he is in his sense of humour. In "Mischief," his latest film, directed by Jack Raymond, he is at his very best. The story by Ben Travers is a humorous affair and the situations give Ralph Lynn every opportunity of displaying his inimitable flair for giving us every ounce of comedy possible. For instance, when our friend visits a young lady in the country and is requested to put out a fire in the chimney, does he do it with charming grace? No! But he does it with charming idiosyncrasy. He promptly falls off the roof, holding a tin of salt in his mouth, into the waterbath! Life is a jolly business when we can see and hear Ralph Lynn on the screen.

"Mischief" which will be shown at the King's Theatre again on Wednesday.

Nagana

The debut of the glamorous Tala Birell in an American-made picture can be recorded as nothing less than a personal triumph for this exotic Viennese actress.

Miss Birell came to the screen of the Central Theatre yesterday in the Universal drama, "Nagana" and lived up to all the complimentary expressions we have heard regarding her beauty, her ability, and a certain strange quality which immediately sets her apart from other motion picture players. Judged by her work in "Nagana," she can hold her own with any actress ever imported from abroad. Melvyn Douglas, in the leading male role, is unusually good in his part, as is also Onslow Stevens, whose brief role is one which remains in the memory.

"Nagana" is a veritable classic. If you enjoy thrills and breathless suspense, do not fail to see it.

"Faithless"

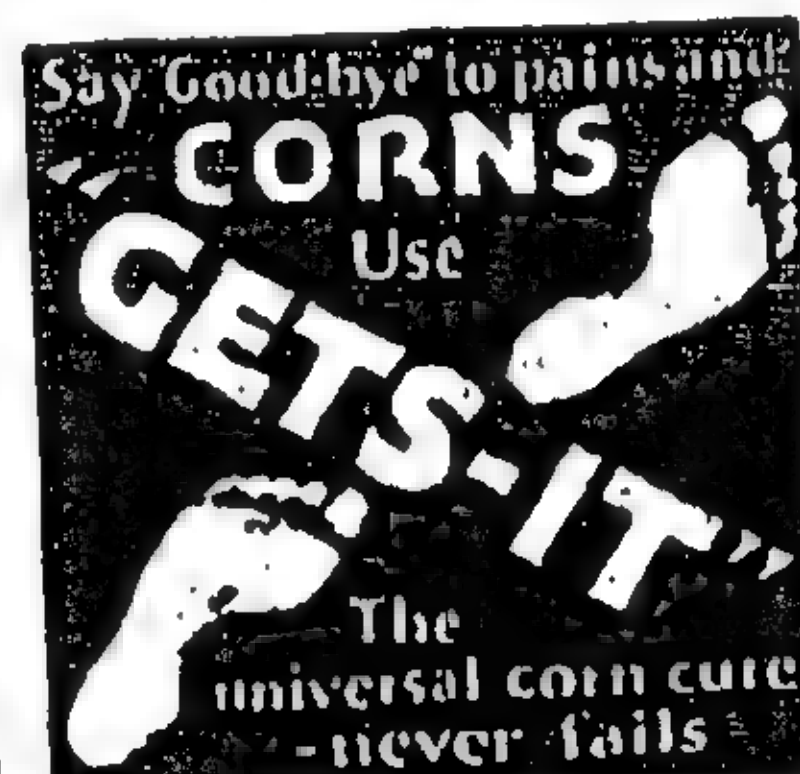

Talulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery make their first appearance together as co-stars of "Faithless," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film opening to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre.

Needless to say, both Miss Bankhead and Montgomery are always at home in their roles, whether it is in the luxurious atmosphere of a society where both find themselves victims of a poverty for which their life has not fitted them.

Miss Bankhead, as Carol Morgan, is a young girl on whom wealth has been rained. But she has never been taught the adage about a "rainy day." When it comes, through the financial upheaval which has left many of the nation's wealthiest destitute and without hope in the past few years, the girl goes down in the deluge, carrying her lover, Robert Montgomery, with her. Together, after many heart-breaks and discouragements, they try to fight upward.

In minor parts there is some excellent acting by Hugh Herbert, Maurice Murphy, Louise Clouser Hale, Anna Appel, Lawrence Grant and Henry Kolker.

Smooth dialogue, tasteful settings and photography, combined with the astute and discerning direction make this an absorbingly entertaining drama.

SOVIET RESERVISTS SAID TO BE MOBILISING

Harbin, Apr. 29.
Soviet Troops are entrenching in the vicinity of Borzla, 68 miles from Manchuli, and reservists between the ages of 28 and 35 years are mobilising in the Chita and Irkutsk districts, according to the Chinese press here.

It is stated that Soviet citizens have been warned to prepare for all eventualities and to refrain from any action calculated to provoke the already strained Russo-Manchukuo relations.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Vice-President of the Chinese Eastern Railway has advised Manchukuo that the U.S.S.R. is the sole owner of the railway and that the Manchukuo claim of joint ownership is equivalent to an attempt to nullify the Peking Mukden Agreements of 1924.—Reuter.

NOVEL CHURCH FOR HONGKONG.

MAGNIFICENT EDIFICE TO BE BUILT OPPOSITE 'VARSITY'

A magnificent church to take the place of the old St. Anthony's Church which until 1919 occupied the site where King's College now stands, has been planned in connexion with the seventh centenary of the Saint. It is to occupy a site consisting of two terraces now being prepared from a slope below Pokfulam Road and opposite the western gate of the Hongkong University. When completed it will be handed over to the charge of the Salesian Fathers whose Industrial School and Home (the St. Louis' Industrial School) adjoins the site.

The new edifice, which will adhere closely to the famous Church of the Salesian Order at Turin (Italy), is something of a novelty for Hongkong, for in its three storeys, space will be found for an assembly room, a theatre or concert hall, and a parish school. The place of worship will on a level with Bonham Road, from which there is direct access.

Supporters of the Salesian Institute, termed "Co-operators," have been responsible for a monthly dollar fund which has gone far towards meeting the outlay on the preparation of the site, amounting to $30,000.

This is in addition to the cost of the structure, for which a sum of between $150,000 and $200,000 will be needed. The architects are Messrs. Hazeland and Gonella.

Strong and representative Committees for the canvassing of the necessary funds have been established in the different districts on the island and mainland,

SOVIET PRESTIGE

MAY PREVENT RELEASE OF TWO BRITONS

London, Apr. 30.
It is learned from Moscow that the possibility of the release of Thornton and MacDonald under the general amnesty for political prisoners is unlikely, as the Soviet would not want to lose prestige by such a pardon.

It is pointed out that as a general rule amnesties are only granted on the November 7 anniversary proclamation of the Soviet Republic.

Thornton and MacDonald were sentenced to terms of imprisonment on charges of espionage, following one of the most sensational trials in the history of the Republic.—Reuter Special.

PERU'S PRESIDENT SHOT DEAD

ASSASSINATED AT RACE COURSE

TWO ASSASSINS KILLED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received May 1, 1933, 10.10 a.m. and 12.05 p.m.)

London, May 1.

The President of Peru, Lieut.-Colonel Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, was assassinated yesterday in the full view of hundreds of people, according to a message from Lima.

He was leaving the Santa Beatriz Racecourse, where he had just completed a review of twenty thousand young men, when he was suddenly attacked by three men all armed with revolvers. They jumped out from the crowd on to the running-board of the President's car and pumped bullets into his back.

TWO ASSASSINS KILLED.

President Cerro was immediately rushed to hospital but he died as soon as he reached it.

A running battle between the assassins and troops succeeded the shooting. Two of the assassins were killed and the third was arrested.

General Oscar Benavides was formally chosen as next President at an emergency meeting of the Cabinet.

President Cerro, who was 44 years of age, came into prominence in 1930 when, with a military junta, he forced out President Leguia by revolutionary methods. He was elected constitutional President in October 1931 for a term of five years and assumed office in December of that year.—Reuter.

Tokyo, May 1.

The Government is in receipt of a proposal by Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the British Board of Trade, to Mr. Matsudaira, the Japanese Ambassador in London, for a meeting of British and Japanese industrialists in London for the purpose of discussing British Empire trade with Japan. The indications are that the Japanese will accept.—Reuter.

MDLLE. HILTZ OFF AGAIN

HOPES TO BE IN PARIS
IN A WEEK

Mademoiselle Maryse Hiltz, the French aviatrix, who was forced to turn back on her flight from Hongkong to Hanoi yesterday morning, owing to adverse weather, left Kai Tak at 11 a.m. this morning.

She is due to arrive at Hanoi late this afternoon, and will leave there to-morrow morning for Saigon. From Saigon, Mlle. Hiltz will follow the Air-Orient route to Marseilles and hopes to arrive in Paris in about a week.

GERMANY'S STRUGGLE

NAZI EFFORT TO BREAK
STEEL HELMETS

NEW TRIAL OF STRENGTH

Berlin, Apr. 30.

Strenuous efforts are being made by powerful quarters to prevent the break-up of the Steel Helmet organisation, which has been seriously undermined by the action of their commander, Dr. Selde, in joining the Nazis.

Dr. Selde urged members of the Steel Helmets to follow his example and the eventual absorption of the organisation by the Brown Shirts is envisaged as the result of an announcement by the Nazi deputy-leader, Herr Hees.

Herr Hees insists that members of the Steel Helmets organisation who wish to become Nazis must cut themselves entirely adrift from their own group. Steel Helmets can only join the Nazis, as did Dr. Selde on April 27, if they first abandon membership of the Steel Helmets.

He adds that no member of the Nazi Party can be a member of the Steel Helmets.

STRONGLY RESISTED.

This patent attempt to break up the Steel Helmets is being strongly resisted by many important figures in the organisation, but already there have been many defections. The effect of course will be to cause bitter hostility between those who remain loyal to the Stahlhelm and the Nazis.

Meanwhile, Dr. Selde, who is Minister of Labour in the Hitler Cabinet, has been asked by the leaders of the German Nationalists, to which party he originally belonged, to resign his seat in the Reichstag.

He has not yet replied to this request.—Reuter.

London, May 1.

Germany and Russia will this year compete for May Day celebration honours.

The preparations in Berlin, where a record crowd of a million will be induced to attend a "Labour Day" parade include a stupendous fireworks display, reproducing (according to the newspapers) the din of a modern battle-ground.

This will be followed by an hour's speech by Hitler, which will be conveyed through a hundred loud-speakers in which

SEQUEL TO FATAL ACCIDENT

(Our Own Correspondent).

Wuchow, Apr. 28.

Natives of the Ping Tang district near Wuchow mobbed and killed the driver of a motor when he knocked down and fatally injured a child whilst driving passengers from Nanning.

As a result the motor car service from Nanning has been completely disorganised. The labour guilds have met and heard a demand from the car drivers for a thorough investigation of the affair and a guarantee for protection against such occurrences.

The accident occurred in the model district of Kwangsi where Mr. Tan-Meo-u, the leader of the Mass-Education movement is the district magistrate.

The whole attention of the district is focused on the future actions of the officials in regard to the affair.

Meanwhile, the police have resumed Communist-harrying tactics, following allegations that the former are organising a counter-revolution.

Ten thousand policemen—in brown shirts, formed a cordon round a big region of the west end of Berlin on Saturday evening, and searched hundreds of houses from top to bottom.

Simultaneously, the police at Recklinghausen, in the Rhineland, seized a hundred rifles and arrested eighty Communists in the course of a raid, during which a number of Communists jumped 45 feet from an upstairs window and were killed.—Reuter

Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received May 1, 8.40 a.m.)

Moscow, April 30.

THE CHINESE EASTERN RAILWAY DISPUTE IS MOVING STEADILY TOWARDS A CLIMAX.

Further correspondence between Mr. Li Shao-keng, the President, and Mr. Kuznetsov, the Vice-President of the Board of Directors, reveals that Manchukuo is now denying that ownership of the C.E.R. belongs to the Soviet.

M. Kuznetsov has replied that the ownership of the railway is admitted in the Articles contained in the Treaties of Mukden and Peking. He has added that the attempt to question the U.S.S.R. right of ownership has given rise to a fear that the object of Manchukuo is to violate both treaties.—Reuter.

Harbin, May 1.

A THREAT THAT MANCHUKUO WILL BE CON-STRAINED TO RESORT TO FORCE TO SOLVE THE C.E.R.
ISSUE IS CONTAINED IN ANOTHER SCATHING
ARTICLE IN THE HARBIN TIMES, WHICH CHAR-ACTERISES MR. KUZNETSOV'S LATEST LETTER "AS THE BARKING OF A MAD DOG."

The article says that his demand that normal working conditions should be restored on the C.E.R. evokes laughter "as it is equivalent to a highway robber professing intolerance of stealing."—Reuter.

CORRESPONDENCE PUBLISHED

A Tass communique giving the substance of earlier correspondence between Mr. Li Shao-keng and M. Kuznetsov, respectively president and vice-president of the Chinese Eastern Railway, on the subject of the chaotic situation on the railway and the suspension of international traffic due to the arbitrary actions of the Japanese-Manchukuo authorities, is published in Moscow.

M. Kuznetsov, the communique states, received from Mr. Li Shao-keng two letters dated April 12 and 18, with reference to the situation at Manchull, where through traffic with the Trans-Baikal Railway has been suspended.

MR. LI'S DEMAND.

In the first of these letters Mr. Li asserts that the Usuri Railway is holding a large number of C.E.R. cars. He insists on the prompt return of the cars and also the return of certain locomotives now in Soviet territory.

In his second letter, Mr. Li states that the forcible closing of the switches which connect the C.E.R. with the Trans-Baikal Railway at Manchull, was carried out on instructions of the Manchukuo Ministry of Ways and Communications in order to protect the property of the C.E.R. and to suspend direct traffic not due for transshipment.

Regarding trains constituting international traffic, Mr. Li stated that there had been no interference with these and that there was no intention to interfere.

VIOLENT ACTIONS.

Replying to these letters on April 20, M. Kuznetsov pointed out that he found in them no answer to his letter of April 10 in which he firmly protested against the violent actions of the railway police at Manchull. He explained exhaustively the treaty basis of Soviet rights in the matter of direct transit shipments along the C.E.R. and demanded that the railway administration should revoke the arbitrary measures and instructions complained of. He also asked when the negotiations for the suspension of transit traffic were to be resumed.

MAY DAY PLANS IN EUROPE

CELEBRATIONS IN RUSSIA

London, May 1.

To prepare a path for a party purge and a big new industrial programme, the authorities in Russia in celebration of May Day, are staging an unprecedented and very impressive tableaux of industrial scenes and illuminated portraits of Stalin, who made a substantial food ration concession to-day.—Reuter.

MADRID EN FETE.

Shanghai, May 1.

CHAHAR INVASION

CAPTURE OF DOLONOR REPORTED

CHINESE REAR THREATENED

Peking, May 1.

A Chinese telegram from Kalgan states that ten thousand Manchukuo troops, under the ex-Volunteer Liu Kuei-tang, and with the assistance of the Japanese, attacked Dolonor with aeroplanes and tanks on April 28th and occupied the city on Saturday evening.

Chinese cavalry were forced to evacuate when more than a thousand plain-clothes Mongol bandits rose up and disturbed their rear.—Reuter.

PEITAIHO RE-ENTERED.

Peking, May 1.

The advance of the Chinese troops in the Luanho region is reported to have resulted in the occupation of Peitaiho. The Chinese are now said to be advancing on Chinwangtao.—Reuter.

STILL CAUTIOUS

Peking, May 1.

Chinese troops entered Chinwangtao on Sunday afternoon following the Japanese withdrawal.

Leading Chinese residents at Chinwangtao conferred with the Chinese commanders to work out measures to preserve order.

Chinwangtao messages state that the Japanese main body is now concentrated at Chumenkow and Shanhaiwan, while the Manchukuo forces are at Shihmenchi.

The Chinese advance in the direction of districts east of the Luan. He will henceforth be slow, because of the general fear of a trap. The fear has been strengthened by the strong Japanese pressure at Kupeikow and Nantienmen and the arrival at Nantienmen yesterday of twenty armoured cars.

General Ho Chu-kuo's troops, who formerly served at Shanhai-kwan as its garrison force, were moving from Ohangli during the week-end for Peitaiho and Chinwangtao to further strengthen the Chinese forces in these places.—Special.

FRESH FISH.

Hints on What to Buy
at the Market.

Scientists have discovered during the past few years that fish is one of the most important foods for children. Aside from its food value in protein, carbohydrates and fat, fish is particularly rich in vitamins necessary to the growing child. Any variety, whether from deep sea or fresh water, is an excellent meat substitute and the regular use of fish once or twice a week makes for a pleasant and profitable change in family menus.

When you go to market to buy fish, there are certain qualities to look for in determining freshness and good condition. Of course your nose is really the best guide to fresh fish, but there are other and more dependable ways of telling in case you do not have an acute sense of smell.

The flesh should be firm elastic when pressed with the finger and should adhere firmly to the bones. When the fish is opened, look carefully at the flesh around the large vein which runs toward the tail. If the flesh is clear, well and good, but if discoloured by blood, the fish is not in good condition.

Fish can be divided into two general groups: fat and lean. The so-called lean fish have fat secreted in the liver, leaving the flesh clear and white. After cooking, lean fish are quite dry and flaky. To this group belong cod, haddock, flounder, trout, smelts, pickerel, black bass and many others.

Cooking Methods Vary

To the fat group belong whitefish, turbot, salmon, herring, mackerel, shad, halibut and numerous others.

The way fish should be cooked depends upon whether it is oily, that is "fat," or lean. The fat fish are best baked or broiled and require no larding nor extra fat. But the lean fish can be cooked in any preferred fashion, extra fat being added.

Lean fish are particularly delicious steamed. Less flavour and nutrients are lost by this method than by boiling. After the fish is thoroughly cleaned it should be wrapped in a piece of cheesecloth, placed in the steamer and steamed until tender.

When only fish is baked it should be placed on a rack high enough to lift the fish from the fat which cooks out. Otherwise the fish will almost stew in its own fat and become strong flavoured and difficult to digest.

Many small fish are good when broiled or fried in deep fat. Fillets of fish are nice this way too. Deep fat frying is preferable to pan frying, since less fat is absorbed in the former method and the crisp coating on the surface of the fish protects the inside from intense heat.

Keep in mind that fish should be cooked at a low temperature and never over-cooked. This is especially true if fish is boiled. Plunge the prepared fish, tied in a square of cheesecloth, into a large kettle of boiling water. Then reduce the heat and simmer until tender, allowing ten minutes to the pound.

In choosing a dessert to serve with fish, keep away from gelatines. Fish itself is rich in gelatinous substances and gelatine dishes, although easily digested and refreshing, are not a good choice. Fish is not regarded as a "hearty" food and a dessert quite rich in calories should be planned.

THE WORLD
OF WOMEN

A FITTING BUSINESS

In order to facilitate creation of frocks for the movie stars, designers have a dummy to correct measure of each patron. The rough frock is made on the dummy and the star need not go for a fitting until the last work is to be done. Adrienne Ames is shown having a final fitting while in the background are the dummy models of Marlene Dietrich, Miss Ames and Mae West.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.
Cleanliness in Beauty Implements.

By Alicia Hart

If your eagle eye spies a blackhead or two on your chin, or around your nose, pause, before you do anything, to see what caused them.

Is your powder puff meticulously clean? Or is the little puff that fits into your compact more than slightly soiled? It is absolutely astounding how many women keep right on using a powder puff on their faces after it is positively dirty. What's the use in cleansing your face, feeding it good creams and making up carefully at home, if you are going to dab powder on it from time to time with a soiled powder puff?

The answer is, "None whatsoever!" Almost any compact can have its puff renewed. Don't buy just one. Buy a half dozen. For it is hard to wash them and have them come out perfectly new looking.

One more precaution about treating your face right. When you come in from the street and start to cleanse your face, do your hands first. Scrub them with a nail brush and warm water and good soap and make sure they are spotless as a surgeon's hands before you begin operations. Otherwise you merely smear your face with your hands' dirt when you put cleansing cream on it.

Hair brushes come next in line

Sandwiches.

When using cold meat for sandwiches, mince it; it is tasty and goes a long way. A tomato added when mincing improves the flavour and has the virtue of keeping the sandwiches moist.

A cut onion may safely be used again if placed in a basin and completely covered with cold water until required.

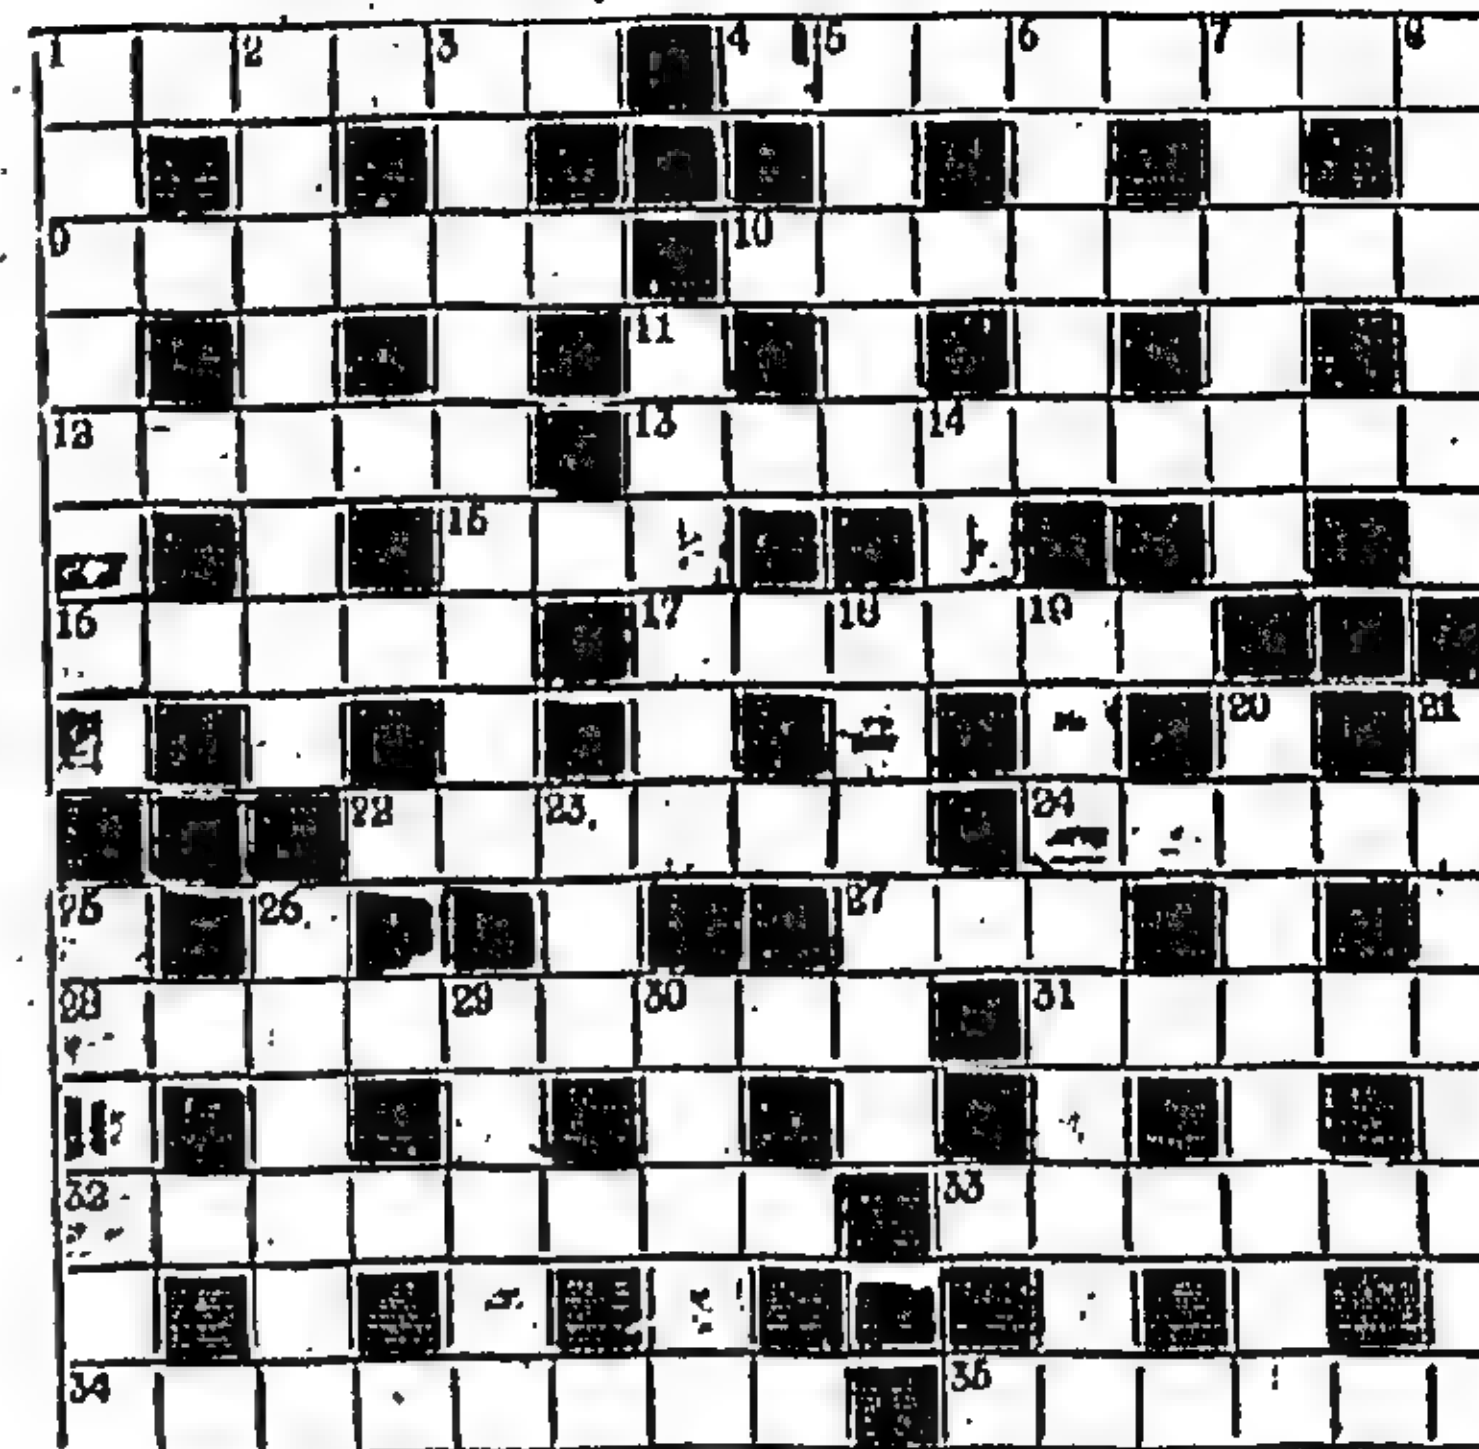

If the oven will not get hot, put about a teaspoon of sugar over the slide and that will draw the heat.

of neglect. Few women keep their brushes clean. You should have two, really, and wash one each day. Do you know any woman who does? Well, I know a very few who are this well groomed.

Keep your beauty jars clean and shining. Keep your powder air tight. Keep the puff that you see in your powder box very, very clean. These big ones, and particularly the ostrich ones, do wash readily and well.

Last, but important, don't keep around a lot of odds and ends of this or that cream, face lotion, muscle oil, skin tonic and so forth. Cull what isn't good for your skin, what you do not use or need, what you never did like. Keep just what you use and keep them in some order, so you build up a mechanical regime for yourself. You should be able to dream a bit about last night's party and go through all the motions of getting ready for to-day's work, at one and the same time.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is surprised when her childhood sweetheart, STEVE BACCARELLI, returns to New York after three years' mysterious absence. Mona contributes largely to the support of her mother, invalid father, sister, KITTY, and never-do-well brother, DUD.

There has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, who owns a diamond mine. Together they have made the mine, believed worthless, pay handsomely. Steve owns a large diamond called "The Empress of Peru."

LOTIE CARL, fashion model, joins Mona, Barry and Steve on several dinner and dancing engagements. Mona's brother, Dud, is under obligations to DUCK HARKINS, night club proprietor and gambler, who plots to steal the huge diamond.

Steve suspects this. One night when Mona and Lotie are Steve's guests, find telephones that his mother is ill. He comes to take Mona home. Later he returns and is forced to confess he meant to steal the diamond. Knowing the gangsters may kill the boy for his failure, Steve decides to send him to South America to work at the mine. They drive to Boston where Dud boards a boat. Steve explains this to Mona next day, warning her she must tell no one.

Several days later Barry invites Mona, Lotie and Steve to spend Sunday at his uncle's palatial country home. Mona is falling in love with Barry.

CHAPTER XVII

The air was sharp and glowing. Nestling at Steve's side, warm in her woollen sport suit, Mona considered the world about her.

On either side in the Fifth Avenue traffic were other expensive motor cars. The women in these cars were dressed beautifully. The men looked confident, distinguished. No suggestion of poverty or hardship here. Nothing of the life Mona herself had known.

Steve had pulled out of that life.

Lotie was pulling out too. Her employer had raised her salary three times in the face of offers from competitors. And Mona was determined to pull away from Third Avenue poverty.

It had been Lotie who had found the blue sport dress Mona wore to-day. "Get it," she advised. "It's a bargain and a real buy!"

Mona had bought it. Girls in the stratum of society to which she aspired bought their sport suits by the dozen. For Mona it took scheming and saving to buy one.

"But there isn't a debutante who'd look as much a queen in that outfit as you do," Lotie had said warmly.

At 55th street Steve halted the car to wait for Lotie. Twenty minutes passed before she appeared. Then indeed she was a vision, dressed in maroon to set off Mona's blue.

"I suppose I draw the rumble seat!" Lotie exclaimed. "All right" (waving a hand toward Mona). "I wouldn't rob you for the world!"

Steve started the car again and they plunged into the park. Past the mall, the pond, out again into 110th street and finally, leaving the city behind, on to Westchester. Roads dipped and swayed toward them. They drove through wooded plots, through brown fields. Here and there they ducked into villas, were delayed by straggling, dressed-up Sunday crowds.

Steve drove with his eyes on the road ahead, a speculative frown touching his forehead.

"This is glorious!" Lotie called to them.

Suddenly they reached a ridge, overlooking one of many broad, shallow valleys on the highway. A lacework of bare trees attempted to hide the village beyond, its few spires pricking into the sunshine like gleaming bayonets.

Further still, near the broad summit at the north, was an estate. On a terraced hill, above lawns and shrubberies, there towered a huge house. A copy of a French chateau of the last century. A golf course had been laid out beyond the buildings. The terraced walls dropped to a stream below where in summer ducks, swans and peacocks would sun themselves.

"That's Twilands," Steve announced briefly, nodding toward the house.

"You've been here before, Steve?" Mona asked.

"Several times."

"Why it's like the movies!" crowed Lotie, in ecstasy. "I've always wanted to go inside one of these big houses where you have to send out a searching party to locate guests straying from the room without a guide. I've always wanted to semaphore a person sitting opposite me at dinner!"

"It's a fine old place," Steve interrupted.

Indeed it was a fine old place. Twilands, even from a distance, bespoke years of tradition, years of culture and care. Mona could picture the small Barry straggling about that lawn in white rompers, swimming in the pool or jogging along the country roadside on his pony.

She thought of him returning here from school bringing his friends. At the time she and Steve had been swinging along Third Avenue on the backs of ice wagons, and being shoed from the neighbour's steps with their tops and jackstones, Barry had been living in this beautiful place.

"Barry should appreciate his good fortune!" Lotie declared.

The fortunate young man met them just within the gate, emerging from the shrubbery as the car whirled inside. Steve jammed on the brakes swiftly. Barry was bareheaded, a dog nosing at his heels. He was dressed in heavy boots, riding breeches and a sweater that was not new.

"It's great to see you!" he exclaimed, springing on the running board and pushing the dog aside with one large brown hand. "Drive on Steve. We'll have another breakfast if you can stand it. I've only had coffee. Then we'll take a tramp or something."

The car crossed the gravel stretch and halted under the porte cochere where Mrs. Faxon, the Townsend's housekeeper, met them, smiling. The girls underfoot at once that she was more than an employee. In her 25 years of service Mrs. Faxon had been governess, secretary and now "hostess" was probably the word to express her position. As Steve put it later, she "ran the place" even when his uncle was there.

Barry introduced them, standing with his arm about Mrs. Faxon's shoulders. She was a charming woman, somewhat over 50, with soft white hair and a face far younger than her years. Lotie, with great restraint, refrained from mentioning the rather obvious resemblance Mrs. Faxon bore to a motion picture duchess.

She greeted the girls charmingly. "You would have thought Barry had never had guests before," she said. "I was afraid he'd walk half way to White Plains to meet you if you didn't come soon."

She added that Barry's uncle was away but that they would try to do the honours in his absence. Mona caught the solemn wink Barry cast in Steve's direction, and smiled.

"The boy has every fireplace in the house blazing high," Mrs. Faxon said, leading the way through the paneled hall to the living room. Here a cosy fire was burning. There was a piano, comfortable chairs, tables, reading

NANTHENMEN FALLS.

JAPANESE BOMBARDMENT

Peking, Apr. 28. An official communique confirms the Chinese reports of furious fighting on the Nantienmen front this morning. General Hsu Ting-yao, the Chinese Commander of the forces, in a report despatched to Headquarters at 2:30 p.m. yesterday, says that the Japanese infantry and artillery, assisted by eight aeroplanes, continued to attack the Chinese centre and the two flanks on the Nantienmen front with utmost violence.

"Most of our fortifications were demolished, but our troops offered a spirited resistance," the report adds. "At some points the Japanese bombardment was so violent that it was impossible to repair the damaged fortifications. However, our troops are exerting their utmost efforts in holding their positions at many points with hand-to-hand fighting."—Reuter.

Nantienmen's Fall.

Peking, Apr. 29. The latest despatches from the front admit that Nantienmen is now in ruins from the Japanese bombardment and has been evacuated. The Chinese troops have taken up new intact defences south of Nantienmen.—Reuter.

Destroyed Beyond Repair.

Peking, Apr. 30. An official communique issued last night states that after 10 days of battering from the Japanese artillery, the Chinese defences at Nantienmen have been destroyed beyond repair.

The battle fought at Nantienmen was one of the most fierce engagements since military operations started inside the Great Wall. Casualties were very heavy during the last two days, owing to the Chinese protection being smashed away. Consequently, the Chinese troops began yesterday moving to new lines which will be held against the Japanese onslaught.—Reuter.

Chiang's Movements.

Peking, Apr. 30. Information to the effect that Chiang Kai-shek had arrived in Peking unexpectedly at 10 o'clock on Saturday night came from a reliable and convincing source, but doubts regarding his presence here have arisen, and the general conviction is that he is not here.—Reuter.

Spies' Activities.

Peking, Apr. 28. Without special authorisation no one will be allowed to proceed to the fighting front, according to an order issued by the Branch Military Council which states that during the last few weeks many communists and Chinese spies employed by "the enemy" posed as representatives of public organizations and went to the front for the purpose of spying on Chinese positions.

Anyone proceeding to the front without the permission of the military authorities is liable to arrest.—Reuter.

ANOTHER FAST
GANDHI ANNOUNCES DETERMINATION

Poon, Apr. 30. Mahatma Gandhi has not yet finished his fasting in the cause of the untouchables.

From the gaol at Yeravda, where he is a prisoner, Gandhi announced yesterday that on May 8 he will begin a fast of 21 days in connection with his campaign for the removal of untouchability.

The fast, says Gandhi, will be "unconditional and irrevocable."

Gandhi's decision to fast is interpreted by observers as an expression of dissatisfaction at the progress of the high caste Hindus' efforts to remove untouchability.

In a fear, in view of Gandhi's reaction on his week fast last September that three weeks will mean certain death.—Reuter.

sun is one. The stars we usually see with the naked eye are almost only the stars of our own group and not those of any other star group, just as we here in Hongkong see our own city lights and not the lights of Manila or Singapore or New York or London. Very few of these extra-galactic nebulae can be seen with the naked eye. But with the aid of a powerful telescope we can see very many of them. They seem to be distributed more or less uniformly throughout space. They are mostly of definite and regular shape and are easy to identify. These lazy, cloudy looking nebulae, examined by a powerful telescope, are shown to have the edge regions shown with spots of light and some of these spots are known to be stars. The central regions of the nebulae seem to be luminous gaseous matter, matter destined one day, perhaps, to develop into full-grown stars, some parts are actual star clouds already formed.

We have seen in this our preliminary trip over the Universe that the earth on which we live is by no means the centre of the Universe and that the sun is not the centre either, that the sun is not even the centre of the group of heavenly bodies of which our earth is one, the galactic system. The sun is just a common star, its apparent size being due to its relative closeness to us. We have not discovered really if there be any centre of the Universe. We have not come to a boundary of the Universe and looked out into an empty void where there were no stars for though we flew with the speed of thought, we could not come to such a boundary, for though could not bring us with scientific observation has reached.

Altogether, in our trip around and about this vast universe we came upon about two million of those nebulae or star cities as I called them in our preliminary flight. This number is thus twice the number of people there are in Hongkong and Kowloon. The chances of our colliding with any of them was infinitesimally small for they are very, very far apart. In fact we got the impression during our trip that space was almost empty for the average distance between these star systems we found to be about two million light years. Now a light year is the distance light travels in a year the rate of 186,000 miles per second. The distance light would travel in a day is enormous, that travelled in a month is staggering to think of, and what of that travelled in a year! And if we multiply the distance it travels in a year by two millions, we get the average distance between those island star systems of the Universe. The distance between the group of lights of Hongkong and that of the light of Manila, fades into nothingness when compared with the tremendous, thought-befuddling distances between the island universes of the stars. The nearest nebula to us is well below the average distance away from us being only 850,000 light years away. That is to say, if you take historical times on this earth as going back 4,000 years, the light that started from the nearest nebula at the beginning of history has only travelled the half of one per cent of its journey and history will have to repeat itself about 200 times more before that light can arrive at our planet.

Now to come back to our own galactic system. The sun is distant from us 93 million miles, and from the sun to the centre of the galactic system is about 47,000 light years. The sun is not on the edge of the galactic system, nor at its centre, but well within it and is surrounded on all sides by stars. The distance across this wheel shaped galactic system from edge to edge is 220,000 light years. No wonder the stars, immense in themselves, look so small to us! The nearest star to us, within our own galactic system, is 25 million miles away, i.e. about 25 thousand times as far away as the sun, and it takes 4 1/2 years for its light to reach us.

The number of stars in the galactic system, not to speak of the other two, million similar systems out-beyond, is estimated as up to 300,000 million. So that if this galactic system were parcelled out among the people of the earth to-day, each would receive for patrimony or plaything a gift of about two hundred starry orbs.

Our earth is comparatively insignificant amongst the galaxies of the universe, insignificant in size, but the mental power of the human inhabitants that travels so swiftly and penetrates so deeply is something far surpassing mere bulk or mere distance in its magnificence. It is good to get out into the open spaces of the country, it is refreshing and broadening, so, too, a visit to the great open spaces and the stellar cities of the Universe widens our intellectual vision beyond parochial proportions to cosmic proportions and even to the touching of the infinite.

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Everlasting punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "Is not destruction to the wicked? and a strange punishment to the workers of iniquity?" (Job 31:33).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord. . . . And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water. . . . and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. . . . The ungodly are not so: but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. . . . For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish." (Ps. 1:1-4, 6).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Through the wholesome chastenings of Love, we are helped onward in the march towards righteousness, peace, and purity, which are the landmarks of Science" (P. 323: 6-9).

BOMB OUTRAGE.

PEKING STORE DAMAGED

Peking, Apr. 28. One of Peking's Iron and Blood Societies caused $10,000 damage when at 8:30 p.m. to-night one of their members walked into a large department store and tossed a bomb towards the counter.

One assistant was badly injured about the head, while the explosion fired a quantity of "flit," causing a conflagration which the Manager of the department store estimates destroyed goods to the value of $10,000.

The store had been threatened before, but complied with every demand of the Blood and Iron Society, offering as free gifts any Japanese goods that can be found.—Reuter.

GERMANY AND DISARMAMENT

Germany, more than any other country, needs to be reminded of the close relationship between the political and economic problems of the day. Herr Hitler may be given a fifty years' mandate, may have every good intention and a sound constructive programme for internal use, but unless he is prepared for international co-operation in all matters of common concern, his hopes and his promises will remain unfulfilled. We may recognise the nature of his problem. He has risen to power on a wave of reaction against years of suffering in an economic crisis incomparably worse than in most other countries. Germany has turned to bold leadership in her search for relief.
But Herr Hitler promised more than he could perform. He cannot antagonise the rest of the world and bring prosperity to the Reich at the same time.
Some of the illusions of his supporters must be disappointed.
He cannot satisfy them at both ends of the scale. Single-handed effort will not restore prosperity to Germany. An essential prelude to world industrial recovery is the removal of international suspicions. Failure to achieve a substantial measure of success at the Disarmament Conference, therefore, must irreparably damage the prospects of achievements at the World Economic Conference and if that fails, the depression must deepen with consequences that no one can foresee. No matter how strong the hand at the helm, economic distress will spread in Germany unless the Reich is prepared to play her part in the measures now being formulated for setting the world on the road to recovery. Ob-structionist tactics at the Disarmament Conference, prolonging, probably intensifying the uneasiness in Europe, will effectively prevent international harmony when the nations come to discuss economic issues. It is highly perturbing, therefore, to find Germany demanding the impossible at Geneva. No one professes that the British Plan is perfect. It is faulty in several respects and cannot expect wholly to satisfy anyone.
But it boldly submits figures—for the first time in years of discussion—which would reduce Europe's armies by almost a million men. It recognises the justice of Germany's claim to equality and grants her substantial increases. It is essentially an emergency plan.
It seeks to furnish a breathing spell. It is, moreover, delicately balanced. Any amendment violently disturbing one of its parts would wreck the whole.
But Germany, unless week-end discussions and the strong moral pressure which Mr. Norman Davis ventured to bring to bear effect a change of attitude, seems determined to insist upon the full substance of equality. She wants, in other words, the right to re-arm immediately. The under-currents of fear which the British Plan was expressly designed to allay would, in such circumstances, be intensified a thousandfold. Only reckless defiance of realities could permit Britain or the United States to assent to such an amendment.

Surely Germany's commercial instincts should be strong enough to govern the situation. The interests of trade and industry depend upon international confidence and confidence depends upon an end to the armaments race in Europe. The British Disarmament Plan improves Germany's relative status immen-sely even if it does not go the whole way. Unless Germany means to make use of her military equipment, tangible equality will mean nothing in the next five years. But five years of peace and prosperity, with the gradual dissipation of distrust and fear, would open the field for a further substantial reduction of armaments down to Germany's level. That is what Britain means by equality.

Body-Line Bowling

After the hot-air outbursts by the Australian Press concerning body-line bowling it comes as a relief to find the Australian Board of Control tackling the question in a thoughtful and constructive way. They intimated, after the first of the recently concluded cricket Test matches between England and Australia, that they regarded "body-line" bowling as not only dangerous to batsmen but harmful to the spirit of the game, and they have backed this up by drafting a rule prohibiting such bowling. They seek the co-operation of the M.C.C. for its inclusion in the laws of cricket and there seems little reason to doubt that such a co-operation will be forthcoming. The difficulty confronting the M.C.C. over the problem is that they have never seen the effect of body-line bowling on wickets such as exist in Australia; another danger is the confusion which obviously exists between what is meant by body-line bowling and the leg theory.
To many it is one and the same thing, yet this obviously cannot be so, for Root of Worcestershire and "Farmer" White of Somerset have all adopted the leg-theory in International and County cricket and have never been accused of dangerous bowling. Australia's suggested rule may seem to put too much onus on the umpire, but consideration of the problem and the most suitable method of treating it, leaves one convinced that the proposed ruling is, perhaps, the best.

A Boy's Pocket

"Out of the everywhere into the here" was intended as a tribute to babyhood. But sightseers who were privileged to view some collections from boys' pockets at a recent hobby show may have been tempted to re-dedicate it. To attempt to dwell on the variety of objects which find their way into a boy's pocket would be quite futile for anyone who does not come frequently into contact with them. But be assured—whether anything can stale it or not—it is a variety worthy of Shakespearean comment. What surprises the adult, however—forgetful of his own talents for cluttering up table drawers, cellars, attics, and most other available spaces—is not so much the variety of things in a boy's pocket as their apparently utter uselessness. The adult will tell you that when he was a boy he too may have acquired pocket collections, but that they contained at least a few objects with meaning. It will be most tactful of you if you will refrain from asking him to enumerate some of them. A boy's pocket!
And the changes the years may bring to it. How easy to slide back to those corduroy "whistle-breeches" days, but how difficult to prove to Sonny that the hoards which made your pockets bulge have yielded you no profits since. For you are not sure of this. You cannot be. It is boy's business.

By REV. D. MacDONALD, S.J.

A child coming to this city for the first time and unexpectedly seeing the splendour of the magic mantle of starry lights that night flings lightly over us might easily imagine that some group of stars had in the silence of the night stolen softly from the firmament of heaven and come down to earth at this place to see its beauty for themselves.

He might think that these stars, weary in their age long flight, wish to rest here awhile and that nothing but the great orb of day rising up from the East could succeed in frightening them away.
Hongkong by night is really like a great cluster of stars settled on hillsides, valleys and bay.

Let us imagine ourselves to-night taking ship in some fleet aeroplane such as no mortal man could dream of constructing, one that can soar upwards and away with the speed of thought, one that fears not fog nor rain nor stormy winds, nor danger of long distances, nor has any terror of landing, because it flies with the wings of thought and leads with the soft gentleness of kindly thoughts.

Let us take ship in such a machine and rise up from this city of ours and turn our course towards the Philippine Islands. As we get clear we gaze back in the darkness and again we see a city of lights and all we have left behind. We can pick out the very spot we started from, noticing that its light is just only one of that brilliant group of lights that marks Hongkong. After crossing a void of darkness we come in sight of Manila—it is still dark and again all we see is a city of lights amid the darkness, another group as it were of starry orbs come to earth. Singapore comes next within our ken, then the speed of thought we are at Brisbane, and so from city to city until we have traversed the whole surface of the globe and back to Hongkong. What we have seen is not a distant land with birdlike flight over the wide expanse of the earth's surface were the myriad clusters of lights of the cities in the world and nothing more. Far apart these clusters were, and insignificant in their sises, when compared with the great spaces that lay unlit between them.
The vision our minds retain as we return is just that of the gleaming groups of lights with which the nightly surface of the earth is bespangled.

No sooner have we returned from our flight, which is but a trial run on our new machine, than we boldly decide on a more ambitious flight.
As we have just finished a superficial survey of the earth by night we now wish to make a similar survey of the vast universe, in which we live.

All excited and buoyed up with the thrill of our new flight we set forth and in the twinkling of an eye have passed the moon, the sun and even the stars that have gazed down upon us nightly. As we look back we see something similar to what we saw as we left behind the lights of Hongkong on our trial trip. We see that the sun, the moon, the earth, the planets and a myriad of stars from a group or colony or swarm of bright orbs like the lights of some immense Celestial city and that we are now flying across a great empty void, lying across a great empty void.

Soon we pass near another immense group of lights, another colony of stars like the one we lived in and have left. We do not wish to pause, but onward we go, spurning the fabulous distances as we go, passing starry groups that look like the city lights we saw on the dark earth's surface, then into vast dark and empty voids where there are no lights. How small those stars swarms look compared with the empty spaces between! Yet one of those groups, the one from which we set out, contains the sun, the planets, moon and the stars which we see rightly in the firm-ment. We find that all the space in which we have been travelling with the speed of thought is just a great void with almost countless star colonies, or groups of luminous orbs floating therein. These star groups are, as it were, universes within the universe. They are called island universes. We might call them star cities because they look to an outsider like the lights of a city by night from the air. As we approach our own star city, or island universe we pick out not without difficulty our own sun, one of a myriad stars that form that group.

But before we re-enter this city of stars that is our own, we just encircle it rapidly to gauge its shape and size.
We find it is not a group of lights on the flat like an earthly city, but lights massed like a swarm of bees flying in close array, not, however, forming a globular shape like a round football but rather, as it were, a star cloud having the shape of a round and somewhat flattened cushion of lei-mens, also somewhat like the shape of a circular watch or lens or the spare wheel of a motor car in its case.
The dimensions of this immense wheel shaped or lens-shaped swarm of starry orbs we note,—its width and its thickness,—and we jot them down for future reference. Then we enter into the midst of that swarm of luminous orbs and just at its very central point we pause in our flight like a hawk poised for the plunge upon its prey. There we gaze outwards in all directions at the lights of this wheel shaped floating city of stars. Looking towards the rim we see the stars in greater numbers than when looking towards the flat sides.
We see stars all round us, but in a vast ring shaped belt, at whose centre we are poised, we see the stars so thickly spread that the belt just seems a white streak of gauzy luminosity. Leaving the centre of our star city we pass the sun at terrific speed and land softly in our own earth and find that the white belt that we saw marking the rim of our floating wheel-shaped star city was what we used to know as the Milky Way.

As we alight we keep the vision of the universe which we have so quickly seen. It is like the vision of the cities of light we saw on our first trip over the earth's dark surface.
Now our vision is of a universe of starry swarms, colonies of stars, groups or families of stars that always retain their group formations.
Each group being at immense distances from its neighbours. We saw that our own sun, the earth, moon, planets were in one of these stars cities or island universes.

These star swarms are called in Astronomy, Nebulae, i.e., clouds, because to us they seem like little clouds, faint and far away. In reality, they are immense things.
They are nebulae at various stages of development. My comparisons speak somewhat inaccurately of them, but that is because we made only a superficial flashlike survey of them in our thought like trip of exploration of the universe. It would be confusing if we didn't make a general survey first, so let our inaccuracies go for the time being.

Our own island universe or star city is also like the others, a nebula or the remains of one. Since that belt of lights across the sky which marks the edge of our wheel shaped star groups is called the Galaxy, our star group is called the galactic system. The other island universes are called the extra-galactic nebulae because they are outside the galactic system or group of stars of which our

The Very Idea!

SPEAKING OF FASHIONS
By Eddie Kelly Et. Cie.

"THE Women—God Dress
'em!"

We were out at Repulse Bay yesterday afternoon. What we saw there convinces us that no one can call Hongkong girls apineless.

No, sir! All those backless bathing costumes we saw yesterday convinces us otherwise.

We ho-men may have a lot to put up with, but it looks as if our women have to bare a lot more.

We hasten to add, however, that we aren't objecting, so long as the display is interesting.

Just quietly, Mrs. K. shakes a wicked vertebrae, and will wreck homes this summer.

And speaking of this year's fashions. We notice that the females will also brook no half measures in the matter of hair this summer.

Either they're going to keep it really short, or really long, or vice versa, as the case may be.

Be that as it may, woman's crowning glory is her own affair and it's no bi-biz of our whether she takes the bun or the plait.

To us, who rise to heights seldom associated with poodle-faking and females generally, it's immor-torial whether their hair is jug-ged or crimped, or done up in skyscrappers.

What we are concerned with is our own private and personal marcel.

The headache is quite entitled to get her hair off if she likes, but let her keep her hands off ours.

We ask you. How can a literary genius tear his hair in a fine frenzy when his wife has been there before him?

In these days of permanent waves, a woman must be a heroine to her hairdresser, but that doesn't entitle her to take heroic measures with her husband's hair.

And then there's our pants.

Next thing that'll happen in Hongkong will be the invasion of the Marlene Dietrich trousers.

Imagine one's embarrassment upon reading a description by "Abigail" of a fashion parade at an A.D.C. first night:

Mrs. Edward Kelly, the best-dressed woman in Hongkong, arrived looking sportive in a dashing suit of blue-velvet, while Eddie stood by her side looking too, too divine in pink organdie set off by a chic bolero trimmed with pink. Pete Watkins created a positive furore in an old-world frock of flowered muslin which he assured me he had run up on his own sewing machine."

What we mean to say is—well, you know how it is! A man can't be too careful these days.

A CORKER.

At a Middlesborough Fair recently, there was a sideshow at which a man, after putting a cork into an empty barrel and then blowing into the bung-hole, succeeded time after time in blowing the cork of the cask.—News Item.

No doubt it was a very clever feat, but if the man had put his mouth to the corks-hole and blown the cask out of the bung-hole or if he had put his mouth into the cask and blown the bung-hole out of the corks-hole or if he had put his cask to the bung-hole and blown the cork out of his mouth, or if he had put the bung-hole to his nose and blown the cask out of the corks-hole or if he had put his nose to his mouth and blown the cork out of the bung-hole or if he had swallowed the cork and blown his mouth out of his ear or if he had put his mouth to the bung-hole and blown it out of the corks-hole or if he had put himself through the corks-hole and blown the cask out of the bung-hole or if he had stuffed the corks-hole into his mouth and blown himself out of the bung-hole and filled the cork-hole with the bung-hole or if he had blown the corks-hole through his nose and the bung-hole, thus making it a blow-hole or if he had decided to blow both himself and the cork through the bung-hole, it would have been a far more remarkable performance.

Well, well, well. We must look into this matter. Abyssinia.

"Your father said I shouldn't mention it, but nobody remembered his tobacco money this week."

BIG HITTING

PITCHERS HAVE BAD TIME

MAJOR BASEBALL RESULTS

Washington, Apr. 30. Pitchers were given a gruelling time in today's major league baseball programmes. Fallenstein of Boston being the only successful one. He blanked out the New York Giants, who were decisively beaten in a double header.

The New York Yankees ran riot in a double header with Boston in the American League, Gehrig scoring two home runs in one game, and Lazzari following suit in the second receiving support from Babe Ruth.

Stone and Walker also hit brilliantly for Detroit to notch a couple of homers apiece.

INDIANS IN FIGHT AT WANCHAI

THREE MEN APPEAR IN COURT

A fight in which a number of Indians were concerned on Saturday night at Tin Lok Lane had a sequel when Akbar Khan, Juwan Khan and Chanan Singh were charged before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning.

The first two were charged with assaulting an Indian constable named Bajjagar Singh and also with causing damage to his uniform. All three defendants were charged with behaving in a disorderly manner.

They pleaded not guilty, and hearing of the case was fixed for to-morrow and Friday afternoons. The first two defendants were released on bail of $100 each and the third defendant on bail of $25.

THIEVES CAUGHT

TERMS OF IMPRISONMENT ORDERED

Two unemployed Chinese, seen to steal two pieces of jade from a showcase at 8, Tung Street, were arrested in Queen's Road Central on Saturday. One of them had three picklocks in his possession.

Both men appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning. One was sentenced to seven months' while sentence of four months was imposed on the other man. Both accused were placed under Police surveillance for two years.

One of the men pleaded he had a mother, wife and child to look after.

The Magistrate—I am sorry, I have got to protect the public against you.

KOWLOON WATCH THEFT

PAWNBROKER TO BE LOSER

At the Kowloon Magistracy this morning Detective Sergeant C. Brown asked for a ruling as to whether a platinum ring watch, pawned without authority, should be returned to the owner.

Sergeant Brown said the watch belonged to Mrs. H. P. Lim, of No. 310 Prince Edward Road, and was stolen from her residence on April 2. She made a report to the Police and a description was circulated to all pawn-brokers.

On Friday Sergeant Brown found it in the Kwan Hing Pawnshop at Hung Hom.

The accountant admitted he had received a description of the watch, but stated that on the day it was delivered to him, he was too busy to study it. The watch was pawned for $15.

His Worship—Didn't you get suspicious when a man came to you with a ladies' watch worth over $200 and pawned it for $15?

Why didn't you study the description furnished you by the Police? I was busy at the time.

His Worship ordered the watch to be returned to Mrs. Lim without payment.

Chu Kee, a money changer, of 140, Connaught Road Central, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, on charges of uttering 30 counterfeit Chinese twenty cent pieces, and possession of 58.

Mr. F. X. D'Almada, sen., appeared for the defence, and the hearing was fixed for Friday at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. D'Almada—Would your Worship reduce bail. It is $2,000.

His Worship—Any objection to reduction?

Det-Insp. Elston—I am entirely to your Worship's hands.

Mr. D'Almada—He is only an assistant.

His Worship—I think on the face of it, he should know what is a counterfeit coin.

Mr. D'Almada—That is for argument later.

His Worship—I think we will leave the bail as before.

ISLAND ROAD HOLD-UP

UNEMPLOYED CHINESE COMMITTED

Following a highway robbery on Island Road on April 7 Wong Teoi, at the Central Magistracy this morning, was committed to prison until the next Criminal Sessions.

Defendant, according to the prosecution, with another man not in custody, held up the complainant, Li Mei, on Island Road and robbed him of 84 cents. Complainant was bound up and gagged with a handkerchief, and left by the robbers. He was found half an hour later by a Chinese constable on patrol.

Subsequently the constable got into a private motor car which took him towards Repulse Bay. He saw two men on the road. One dressed in European clothes ran away. The car drew alongside the other man, and the constable arrested him. This man was defendant.

Defendant denied robbery. The other man asked him for help in trying up complainant. Complainant was carrying soap on his shoulder. Li Mei accused him of smuggling. Li Mei struck complainant. After trying complainant up, Li Mei asked accused to proceed towards Stanley. He did not know why he was arrested.

Mr. Wynne Jones said he did not think a deduction of that nature was fair.

Inspector Alexander—I might say, that a number of cars have been taken and practically the whole lot have been dumped in Wanchai. I understand that is where this man lives.

PROBLEM OF AIDING AND ABETTING

Does sitting in the back seat of a car constitute aiding and abetting?

In order to consider the point, Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, adjourned until to-morrow, a case in which three Chinese, an apprentice, a boiler repairer and an electrician, were charged with aiding and abetting Wong Hong-shun, unemployed, to drive a car belonging to Mr. K. K. Cox, of the Hong-kong Electric Co., Ltd., Wong pleaded guilty to charges of driving the car without a licence and without permission.

Traffic-Inspector C. F. Alexander, prosecuting, said that at 8.30 on Saturday night, Mr. Cox left his car in Connaught Road Central opposite the Star Ferry wharf.

He went to Kowloon, and on returning at 2.30 a.m. found the vehicle was missing. He engaged a rickshaw and went to the different car parks, and being unable to find the car, went to Police Headquarters.

The Inspector-on-duty circulated a message giving a description of the car. Sergeant Fryer, of the motor patrol section, who happened to be at Aberdeen Police Station, when the message was given, set out in search. Along the Island Road, he met the car coming towards him. He drove it to Central Police Station. The other three occupants, said the prosecuting officer, must have known that the car did not belong to the defendant as he was unemployed.

DIFFICULT TO PROVE.

The Magistrate—How can they aid and abet sitting in the car?

Insap. Alexander—They must have known the car did not belong to the defendant. They also had a young girl, aged 15 years, with them, but she had not been charged. These people were taken for a joy ride round the island.

The Magistrate—The question is how are you going to prove that they definitely knew he did not get permission.

Insap. Alexander—it is fairly difficult to prove.

His Worship remarked he would like to consider the point as to whether sitting in a car constituted aiding and abetting, and remanded the three defendants to to-morrow on bail of $50 each.

First defendant, who pleaded guilty, was fined a total of $175 or eight weeks' hard labour in default.

Inspector Alexander—I might say, that a number of cars have been taken and practically the whole lot have been dumped in Wanchai. I understand that is where this man lives.

Mr. Wynne Jones said he did not think a deduction of that nature was fair.

MANCHUKUO AND C.E.R. OWNERSHIP

They stated that inquiries had been received from a number of railways that are parties to the International Railway Convention asking the possibility of availing themselves of the C.E.R. services for the transportation of through freight between Europe and the Far East.

The railway administration, having regard to the interests of the C.E.R. and while respecting the interests of the State, still awaits definite explanations and the removal of the obstruction that has been created at Manchukuo station. As is well known, the administration has received no intimation from the authorities in regard to this matter. Notwithstanding duty to reply immediately to the inquiries received from European railways in regard to through traffic, the administration has refrained from giving any information. It is awaiting our reply and mutual reassurances.

"The organizations preventing through traffic between Europe and the Far East are the Manchukuo authorities, particularly those representatives of the Ministry of Ways and Communications under whose instructions the police at Manchukuo carried out illicit measures damaging to the interests of the C.E.R. and those railways which are parties to the International Railway Convention. Hoping it is your purpose to obviate the C.E.R. breaking any of its international obligations, I trust you will induce the authorities at Manchukuo to revoke their arbitrary instructions, so that the administration may notify parties to the International Railway Convention that direct through traffic has been restored."

TREMENDOUS DAMAGE.

M. Kuznetsov goes on to state the viewpoint of the Soviet Government in regard to the damaged cars and locomotives, as set forth in the recent statement by M. Karakhan to the Japanese ambassador in Moscow, Mr. Ota, and also in the letter addressed to the diplomatic agent of the Manchukuo government by M. Slavutsky, Soviet consul-general in Harbin, is well known. He declares that the Manchukuo authorities, using alleged property rights in the C.E.R. as a pretext, committed a number of violent acts directed in the first place toward the undermining of the normal working of the C.E.R., acts which caused serious losses to Soviet interests, while the Manchurian section of the C.E.R. Board failed to take any steps to secure the interests of the railway. Moreover, there had been tremendous damage to rolling stock as the result of disasters on the eastern line of the railway. Nothing was done about this by the Manchurian section of the Board. They likewise failed to secure the return of the railway wharf in Harbin, and no steps were taken to ensure protection of the personnel of the railway or the latter's property.

NORMAL WORKING.

In conclusion, M. Kuznetsov expresses the hope that Mr. Li Shao-keng will take the necessary steps to secure an adjustment of the questions raised so that the necessary conditions for the normal working of the C.E.R. may be created. He emphasizes that the Soviet representatives are interested in seeing the normal working of the C.E.R. restored so that the best results may be produced for both parties on the basis of a strict adherence to the appropriate agreements and regulations.

LAWN BOWLERS MAKE START

DEBUT OF POLICE AND I.R.C.

The debut of the Indian Recreation Club and the Police in the second division of the Lawn Bowls League on Saturday was signalled by each sustaining defeat.

But both displayed some useful talent, and the Indians performed creditably in holding the Hongkong Electric to a dozen shots.

The Yacht Club, last year's runners-up, achieved a useful performance in visiting the Kowloon Bowling Green Club and taking away both points. For this they had to thank McFarlane's rink, which eclipsed Davidson's four to win by 22 shots.

The Recreio showed no mercy to the Police whom they entertained and won by no less than 50 shots.

The Civil Service opened the season with a decisive victory over the K.C.C. holding an advantage of a dozen shots. Jack's was the only K.C.C. rink to win.

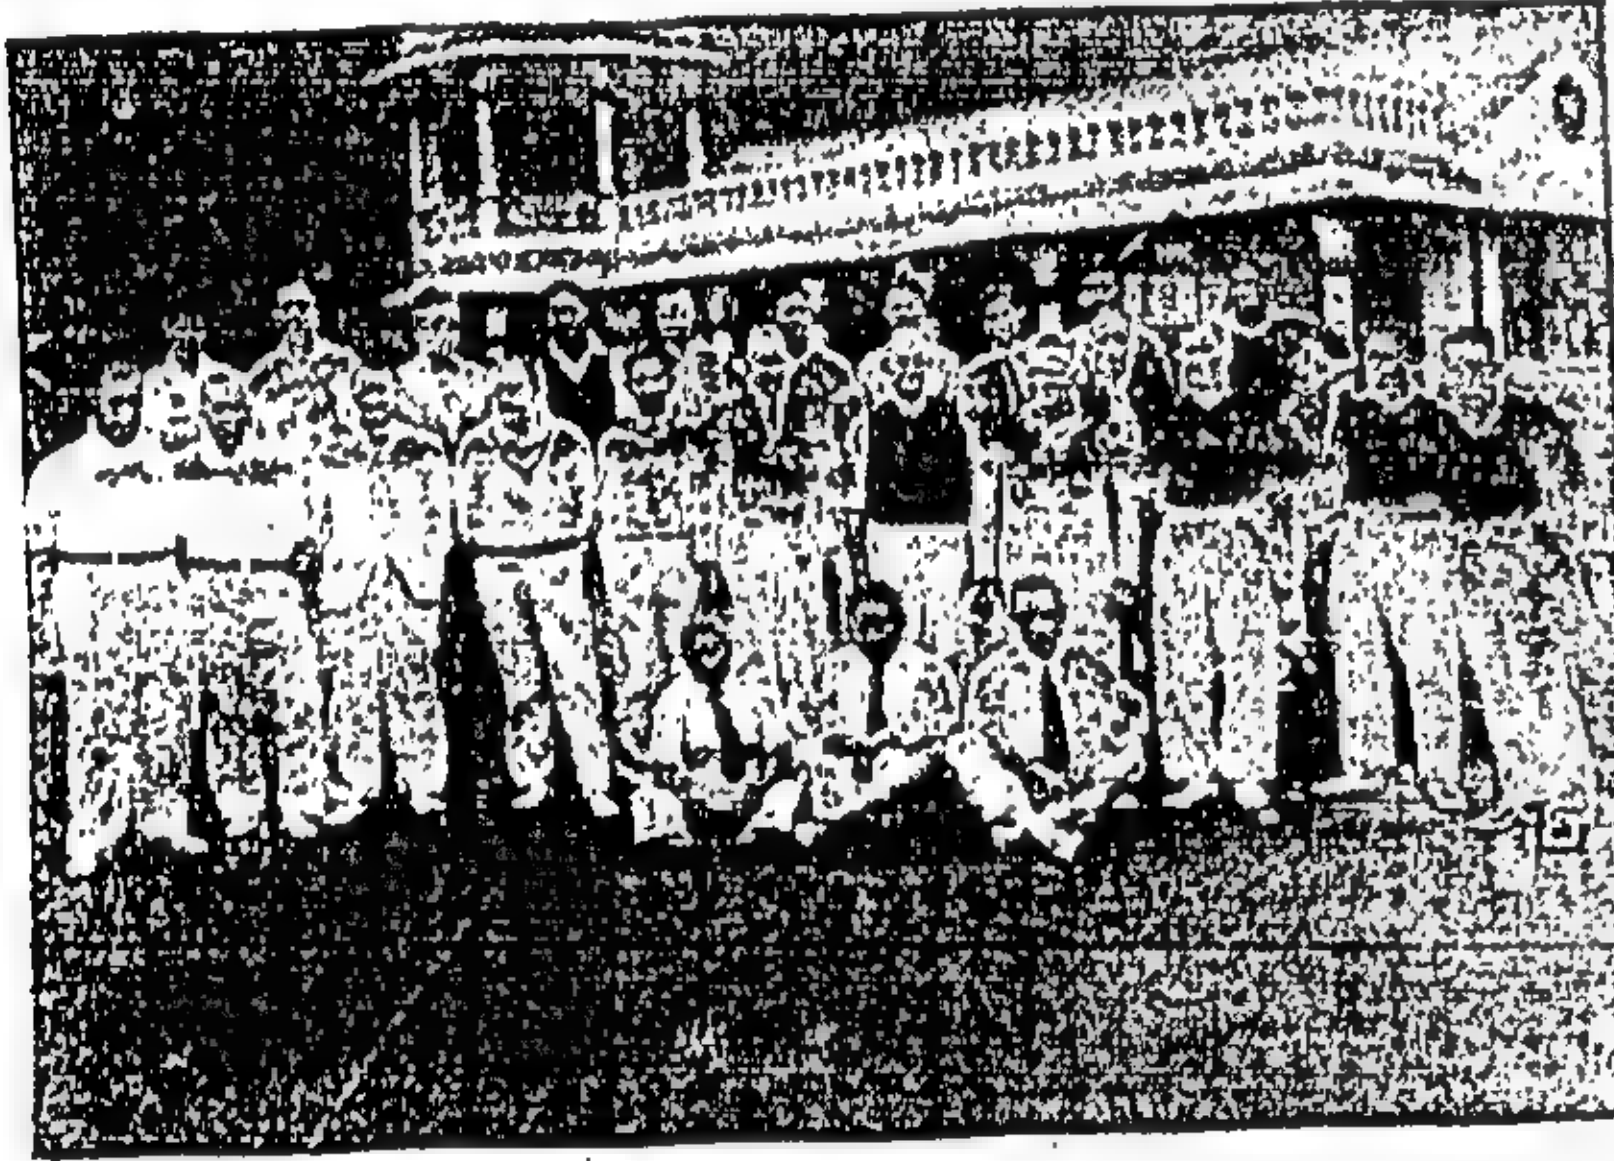

Full results were as follows:

TAM KONG PAK AND WONG MEE SHUN EACH SCORE BRILLIANT GOALS

Soldiers' Forward Line Fade Away

(By "Veritas")

The more one sees of South China the more one is forced to the conviction that they stand pre-eminent in Hongkong football. And by this I am not depending merely on their record of matches lost and won or trophies bagged in one or more seasons, but upon the quality of their football, which, when analysed, indicates a scientific study of the game which places it two or three classes above any other type of football in the Colony.

This was exemplified against the Lincolns on Saturday.

South China won by three goals to one. If they had scored another three nobody would have been surprised nor the team flattered. It was one of the most clear-cut results of the season, and in negotiating this hurdle as they did, I cannot see how South China are to finish anywhere else but top in the league.

COMPLETE MASTERS.

Frankly the game contained such little incident that it does not call for much comment. South China were the masters in every department and in every phase of the game.

It was more particularly noticeable in the forward line contrast. The Lincolns were hopelessly unenterprising, unimaginative and unresourceful.

Their chief sin of commission was bad passing and of omission refusing opportunities. Individually there was not a forward capable of shooting from anywhere beyond twelve yards range, and as they only got as near the Chinese goal two or three times during the game, it can be readily understood that they had little hopes of scoring goals.

Hocquard was a disappointment. A foot injury early on seemed to upset his confidence, and even when given a clear run and plenty of room in which to centre, he continually misfired.

Ridley saw a lot of the ball, but did not make very skillful use of it, and Higgins was virulent without being in the slightest bit effective. Harding and Baldry were rarely in the picture.

BETTER IN DEFENCE.

The Lincolns were far more impressive in defence.

Heath, apart from his blunder which gave South China their second goal, gave an active display between the sticks and kept the score down. Nevertheless, in the last five minutes of the game he was beaten three times in rapid succession, only to see the ball strike the framework and rebound into play.

Turner and Ash were keen workers and refused to budge an inch, whilst Dudley, Cork and Bott offered useful assistance, although their work was confined to breaking up the Chinese attacks and little else was shown in constructive play.

South China excelled in all departments. The defence was steadfast and the half backs brilliant. Leung Wing-chui was inspired in the pivotal position, and the support given him on the flanks by Yeung In-chun and Lee Kwok-wai left no doubt as to the immeasurable superiority of the Chinese in this part of the team.

Fung King-cheung has regained all his old time skill in leading the attack and his glorious passes to the wing paved the way for more dangerous attacks than any other movement among the home forwards.

TAM'S HEADWORK.

Tam Kong-pak's headwork was a feature of the game. In spite of lack of stature, he invariably bent his opponents to the ball, timing his jumps perfectly. He scored two clever goals crowning an afternoon of fine endeavour.

Wong Mee-shun was another schemer, although I still feel that he is a better half back than forward. Nevertheless, he scored a perfect goal—a real gem of a shot from over 20 yards range taking the ball on the volley. Ip Pak-wa was very well handled by Turner, but Ng Po-kui enjoyed more time, light by reason of the openings given him by Fung and Wong, who made his work very easy with wonderfully directed passes.

South China led two-nil at the interval, Wong Mee-shun and Tam Kong-pak netting, and they added a third through Tam, before Harding, in the last minute, obtained the Lincolns' solitary point.

Club Unlucky

The Club and Navy brought the second division season to a close when they met at the Valley, the Navy winning, rather luckily, by the odd goal in five. On the run of the play a draw would have been much fairer.

Elsworth, Blair and Sayer were outstanding for the winners, and the Club were well served by Ralston, Punccheon and Robertson.

Brooks opened the Navy account from a penalty, after missing with his first kick, but Robertson equalised, only to see Elsworth gain the lead for the visitors before the interval.

Lawson put the Club back on level terms late in the second half, but Elsworth in the closing minutes secured the winner.

Day's Biggest Surprise

The biggest surprise of the day, although it had no effect on the championship, was the defeat of the Lincolns, second place holders on the third division, by South China, who not only scored twice without reply, but should have, on the run of the play, scored several more.

The Lincolns had to play second fiddle throughout, the dazzling movements of the Chinese finding work links in the defence armour of the soldiers. Leo Wing-on and Leo Shing-wing scored for the winners.

The Artillery finished the season's programme in whirlwind fashion, and scored eight against St. Joseph's, who replied but once. So one-sided was the game, and so ineffectual the opposition, due to the weakened team the Saints fielded, that its interesting features were confined to individualistic achievement.

In this direction Edmunds came in for some notice. He scored four goals, three of them in succession. The Artillery were right on top from the start. St. Joseph's, without the services of Marques in goal (still suffering from an injured foot) and the Gosano brothers, could find no way of countering the determined work of the Gunners, and after conceding four goals in the first half, gave up the unequal contest.

EVERTON WIN THE CUP

MANCHESTER CITY BEATEN 3-0 IN A THRILLING GAME

LEAGUE PROBLEMS STILL UNSETTLED

London, April 29. For the second time in its club history, Everton won the English Cup when they defeated Manchester City in the final at Wembley Stadium today by three goals to nil in ideal weather conditions before a crowd of 93,000 spectators.

His Majesty the King was not present owing to the inclement weather, but he was represented by H.R.H. the Duke of York.

The Stadium was rapidly reaching its capacity crowd of 93,000. Scores of policemen lined the track and a similar number of cameramen fought for advantage points behind the goals. The band of the Scots Guards accompanied the community singing, of popular aim, many rattles joining in the chorus.

The teams were given a great welcome when they "tried the feel of the pitch," which was excellent, but slightly greasy as the result of slight rain. The sun, however, came out as the players went off the pitch, and transformed it into a patch of shimmering emerald green.

Tyson, of Tottenham City, was unfit and thus caused a reshuffle of the City's line-up, Marshall coming into inside right and Herd taking the position of centre-forward.

Conditions were ideal when the Duke of York shook hands with the players prior to the start.

His Majesty the King took advantage of the sun and took a long walk on the pitch. At the kick-off, Toseland made ground but Sagar cleared with a long kick down the centre. A bout of scrappy play then ensued on the Everton right wing where Geldard and Dunn tried the strength of Bray and Dale.

McMullan set the City forwards again in motion, but Sagar cleared Cowan's long shot. The City were, however, back again, and Toseland forced a corner, but Sagar again cleared a low shot near the post.

Everton's Policy.

Everton's method of attack was to get the ball in the air, but over-enthusiasm spoiled good work.

Thrills abounded, Dean alternately shooting and heading just over, while Cresswell cleared a dangerous free kick from Brooks.

The game was very even until Cann let in Stein, but Dean failed to gather his pass from three yards range. A moment later Britton, taking a free kick, hit the crossbar, and the ball bounced out to Stein, who hooked into the net in the 10th minute of the game. The interval arrived without addition to the score.

At the resumption, the City men were quicker on the ball, and had Cresswell kicking harrassedly, while Sagar made a remarkable save from Toseland's cross-shot. However there was still something behind Everton's policy of keeping the ball in the air for a high centre from Geldard enabled Dean to head the leather past Langford five minutes after the resumption.

Everton now played real football. A glorious right-wing movement ended in Dunn causing Langford to leap frantically to keep out a terrific drive.

Manchester Undaunted.

Toseland and Brooks were the leading lights of the Manchester attack which was revived in an encouraging manner despite the arrears but the veteran Cresswell played a great game, being here, there and everywhere.

The ball was quickly carried from end to end, while the football, if lacking something of artistry, was thrilling and full of incident. Langford brought down the "house" with a brilliant save from Dean, flinging himself full length on to the ground in doing so.

Everton's right wing attack and Dean's persistence sealed Manchester's doom, for Dean worried their defence into conceding a corner which Geldard placed direct to Dunn, the ball flying into the net at lightning speed off the inside right's head. This goal was scored nine minutes before the finish.

Neither side extended themselves in the closing minutes and the whistle blew with Everton winning by three goals to nil.

the Chinese Civil Servants' Club and Mr. Tsung Wan-kai, of the South China Athletic Association.

Associations History.

Before introducing General Tsai Ting-kai, Mr. Chan Lim-pak, gave a brief history of the Association. Commencing with only a few members, the Association had now become the largest in the Colony, its membership being well over 5,000.

Mr. Chan said the erection of this magnificent new pavilion, by far the best on the North Point waterfront, had occupied a period of two years.

General Tsai said he was very pleased and honoured to open the new bathing pavilion which was the finest he had seen.

He gave a brief history of the sporting side of the Chinese nation and said it was up to those in Hongkong and those who were members of this powerful Association, to keep up the prestige of their nation.

He declared the building open amid applause.

The Hon. Mr. Kotewall, also spoke and congratulated those who were responsible for providing 5,000 members with such a magnificent bathing pavilion.

Imposing Structure.

The Pavilion from outside is a very imposing structure, being built with a red brick front in old English style. The building is divided into two compartments, which are fitted up for the use of ladies and men members of the Association.

The ladies' section is divided up into immovable cubicles, with showers at the rear of the division, while the men's section, instead of having cubicles, is one large compartment with lockers fitted on all sides. Showers have been constructed in the rear of the dressing

COMMUNIST "PURGE."

COUNTRY-WIDE CAMPAIGN IN RUSSIA

Moscow, Apr. 30.

A gigantic "purge" of the communists is officially scheduled to begin on June 1. It will apply everywhere throughout the country with the exception of a few districts.

Simultaneously the "passport system," which keeps the people where the Government wants them, will be extended practically throughout the country.—Reuter.

The front of the Pavilion has a broad verandah. The length of the swimming area is approximately 25 metres with low and high diving boards. It will be possible to play water polo a few yards from the Pavilion verandah at either high or low tide.

A water-polo game was played between the Senior and Junior teams, while a relay race between selected teams and an exhibition of diving by promising members were featured in the afternoon's aquatic programme.

A Chinese Theatrical play completed the day's proceedings. During the intervals the band of the Chung Sing Benevolent Society rendered selections and light refreshments were served.

THE CATECHISM FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

BISHOP VALTORTA'S TALK AT WAH YAN COLLEGE.

The Catechism as a basic text for the spiritual and moral education of the pupil, was discussed by Bishop Valtorta when distributing the prizes to winners in the recent Catechism competition amongst the various Chinese Catholic Schools in the Colony, at the Great Hall of Wah Yan College, Robinson Road, on Saturday afternoon.

At "At Home" was held by the Chinese Catholic Young Men's Society, the guests including Fr. De Angelis, Fr. Gallagher, S.J., Fr. Burke, S.J., Fr. Ngai, the Mother Superior of the Italian Convent, the Mother Superior of the French Convent, the Mother Superior of the Precious Blood Convent, and many of the nuns from the various institutions.

Mr. Shek Chung Sun, Chairman of the Society, welcomed the Bishop.

Bishop Valtorta said: "This day is Catechism Day, and this is the first occasion on which it has been observed in Hongkong. I hope and pray that it will be kept every year. I hope and pray that it will be observed every year for as long as the Catholic Church is in existence, and that is for as long as Hongkong will stand."

I hope that this day will be kept more solemnly than any other prize-giving day. Catechism is the most important subject that is taught in schools. I hope that teachers and pupils will take a great interest in this subject and in this day.

What it Teaches.

"When pupils are at school they are taught to fit themselves for a decent and comfortable life in this world. How much more important is Catechism than other subjects taught in schools, for it teaches us to fit ourselves for the next world."

"Catechism teaches us to know, to serve, and to love God, therefore we must love the Catechism. Pope Pius XI, when himself a catechism teacher, used to prepare the small chimney sweeps of Milan. Let us learn from his example to teach the Catechism to poor children."

"I offer my congratulations and thanks to all teachers of the Catechism, and on behalf of Christ, himself, I dare thank them. They will gain great merit before God. I wish them also every good in this life."

Fr. De Angelis translated the speech into Cantonese, and himself spoke on behalf of the students.

The Prize Winners.

The prize-winners were:
Senior Champion: Pui Ching (Italian Convent).
Runners-up: St. Paul's Institution.

Junior Champion: Ching Kuu (Precious Blood Convent).
Runners-up: Tak Ying 2nd Branch (Precious Blood Convent).

Misses Chau Kit Tak, Tsang Yuk Hing, Leong, Chi Shau, Lui Fung Ngan, (Italian Convent), Lui Yuk Fun, Lui Kam Tai, Wong Kam Tai, (Tak Ying School, Tsui Yuet Hing, Cheng Yuk Ping, Fung Kit Ling, Ma Yuen Yun, (St. Paul), Yim Kai Yan, Pang Yik Yu, Tsang Shiu Ngo, (Ching Kuo), So Yuet Hing, Yuen Wain Kwai, Sin Yat Foon, Lam Yauk Lan, (Tak Ying 2nd Branch), Master Chan Yee Yan, Leong Hon Cheun, (Kai Lap), Hui Wai Kang, Chu Kwai Mui, Ho Wai Lih, Chan Fung Lin, (Pui Ching), Lau Wai Shim, Leong Fong, (Tak Ying Middle School), Leong Sam Mui, (Young Tak School), Tam Ming Wan, (St. Margaret's School), Chan Fung Hing (Tak Yan School).

The afternoon's programme included music and a play "Two Wounded Soldiers" which were much enjoyed.

GRIFFITH—MACFADYEN.

Two well-known local residents were married at St. John's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Frances Barbara Macfadyen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Macfadyen, became the bride of Dr. Gerald Victor A. Griffith, of Dublin, Ireland. The Rev. A. D. Stewart officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gracefully gowned in a Princess robe of ivory liberty satin with full sleeves and train cut in panels. Her long Brussels net veil was held by a wreath of tiny orange blossoms and finished with clusters of the same flower, completing an extremely pleasing effect. She carried a bouquet of beautiful selected lilies.

Daffodil shades were chosen for the bridesmaids, the Misses Helen Knill and Betty Laing, and the flower-girls, Misses Athole Dovey and Elizabeth Newton, all of whom wore dresses to harmonize with that of the bride. The bridesmaids' gowns were finished with velvet sashes and cloche hats of tassel straw. Their bouquets were of larkspur. The little flower girls wore Victorian dresses, organdie caps and carried tiny posies of larkspur.

Mrs. J. E. Dovey was matron of honour, while Mr. D. L. Prophet discharged the duties of best-man.

Following a reception at 4, Basille, Lytleton Road, the residence of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. Griffith left for Taipei where the honeymoon is being spent. For her going-away dress the bride wore a sapphire blue ensemble, with hat, bag and shoes to match. The beautiful dresses worn by the bride, bridesmaids and flower-girls, as well as the going-away dress, were all creations by "Eunice".

VARIETY CONCERT.

PERFORMANCE IN AID OF CHILD WELFARE CENTRE

There was a fairly large attendance at the concert at Volunteer Headquarters last night, the funds of which are in aid of the Child Welfare Centre, Indian Troops. Scenes from the well-known Indian play "Leila-Majnun" were presented in the second half.

Instrumental items were contributed by members of the Jats, while the Hongkong Singapore Brigade, R.A. provided an amusing comedy. Mr. J. K. Ma, assisted by two violinists, delighted with some Chinese music, and Professor F. Gonzalez won much applause with his playing on an ordinary carpenter's saw. He also scored with guitar selections. A wrestling match was also staged between the Indian soldiers.

After the interval, the play "Leila-Majnun" a story of lost love, was performed. A love which began in childhood days is broken up when the young man is thought to be insane, and the girl is forced to marry a Prince of Arabia. Majnun, on hearing of the betrothal, becomes really insane and ends his life in a wood. His lover, who has been really committed suicide. The dramatic spells of this play were well conveyed by the cast.

BISHOP'S BUSY DAY

LEAVES FOR SHANGHAI AFTER CHAPEL DEDICATION

Bishop Hall spent a busy day yesterday. In the afternoon, he left aboard the German ship Sauerland for Shanghai, where he is to attend a meeting of Chinese Christians.

Yesterday morning at St. Andrew's Church, the Bishop confirmed 19 candidates, and preached an inspiring sermon. At 3 p.m. he dedicated the new Chapel of St. Peter, immediately after which he left to board the ship.

It is understood the Bishop will be away for an indefinite period.

lamps. Everything was fresh, livable and cosy.

As they entered a dog rose from the hearth, and wagging his tail, waddled toward Barry. A maid appeared and led the girls to a room upstairs to remove hats and powder their noses.

In the ruffly, taffeta bedroom Mona and Lottie expertly repaired damages of the journey through the wind.

The maid shook out their wraps and hung them carefully in the closet, indicating that when they were needed again she would bring them downstairs. She straightened the gloves hung on the dresser, rescued Mona's handkerchief from the floor and quietly departed.

Lottie ran a comb with practiced skill through her carefully scalloped blonde hair, cupping her hand carefully about its edges, crouching toward the mirror as she remodelled her scrumptious lips.

"If you let this chance slip, you're a fool!" Lottie announced abruptly.

Mona glanced up in amazement. "What chance?" she asked, her eyes wide.

She wheeled suddenly toward Mona. "Don't let a school girl crush you out of all this! Don't let your friendship for Steve keep you from seeing that Barry is crazy about you. All this, Mona, is yours for the taking! You don't even have to ask for it!"

Mona laughed. "Barry isn't in love with me. Don't be silly! He flirted with me at the office, but that doesn't mean anything."

"And Steve?" Mona went on, "is it sounds silly—but he's just a friend."

"That may be," returned Lottie. "I don't know. But Barry Townsend is in love with you." She struck her little finger with the forefinger of the other hand meditatively. "He moons around whenever you are near and beside that—he told me so!"

"Told you so?"

"Practically."

Lottie opened the door and the faint odour of coffee reached them. They could hear Barry's laugh. Steve's admonition to the dogs. Someone called: "Breakfast!"

But Mona did not stir. "Barry told you he was in love with me, Lottie?" she demanded. "You—you didn't ask him?"

"I should say not! He told me so without the slightest assistance."

"When?" demanded Mona, incredulously.

Lottie considered. "Let me see. Just one week ago. It was last Monday at 5:30 sharp."

"Where?"

"Over the tea table. At Sherry's."

DIARY DISCOVERED.

WATCH SHOWS THAT CRASH TOOK PLACE IN AFTERNOON

Florence, Apr. 30.—Hinkler's diary, recording the names of the places passed during his flight, was found in the door pocket of his machine, with a note adding that he proposed to fly over Mount Lavinia and then down the Adriatic coast to Brindisi.

Hinkler's watch stopped at 3 p.m., which must have been the time of the crash.

Although the machine caught fire, the petrol tanks are still partly full, so it is evident that the storm must have put the flames out quickly.

BAKER'S COMPLAINT LEADS TO PROSECUTION

A Chinese woman appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court on Saturday morning, charged with keeping a "sly" brothel at 267, Queen's Road West. She pleaded guilty and was fined $75, or six weeks.

Detective-Sub-Inspector A. H. Elston, of the S.C.A., said the prosecution was brought about as the result of a complaint made by a baker on the ground floor, who stated that the customers had to pass through his shop to get to the brothel.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The foolish player plays what is termed "poker bridge." While this may win one or two hands, it will surely lose in the long run. The more finished player always figures the percentage of chance on a particular play. If you are going to lose more than you can win, then the odds on the play must be greatly in your favor if you are to make that play. One of the most clever percentage plays that I have seen this year was played at New York by Mr. Charles H. Goren of Philadelphia.

The Bidding

Mr. Goren in the South opened the bidding with one diamond. West passed and North, his partner, responded with a one over one force, namely one heart. In response to the one heart bid, Mr. Goren bid three clubs. This showing of a second suit and a jump-shift bid is a mild slam try. West passed and North went to five clubs—another jumper bid showing extreme strength. Mr. Goren then bid five no trump.

These were all very powerful bids and indicated that both partners were endeavoring not only to reach a small slam, but a grand slam. North responded with seven clubs.

Mr. Goren was playing in a duplicate match. At rubber bridge one could be satisfied to play the hand at seven clubs, as the difference between clubs and no trump is only slight. But at duplicate bridge you must not only

♠ J-7	♥ A-Q-10-7-4-3	♦ None	♣ K-Q-7-4-3
♠ K-10-9-6-3	♥ J-8-5-2	♦ J-8-5-2	♣ J-5
♠ A-Q-5	♥ K	♦ A-K-Q-6-3	♣ A-10-9-8
♠ A-10-9-8	♥ A-10-9-8	♦ A-10-9-8	♣ A-10-9-8

play the hand at the maximum contract but you must arrive at the correct suit declaration. No trumps count more than clubs and Mr. Goren wished top on the board, so he now bid seven no trump.

The Play

West's opening lead was the jack of clubs. Against a seven bid, West would have been foolish to open his fourth best spade, as undoubtedly it would be leading directly into a tenace position held by the declarer.

With the jack and one club, he could lead the jack and not sacrifice any card that might be in his partner's hand, although both opponents have shown strength in clubs.

It is not always the best procedure to attack against a seven bid with your longest and strongest suit, but is sometimes better to throw the lead to the declarer and wait for developments.

The club jack was won by Mr. Goren with the ace. He cashed his king of hearts and led the ten of clubs, overtaking in dummy with the king. Now he tried for the heart break by playing the ace and queen, but on the second heart East showed out, discarding the deuce of diamonds.

A small club was then led and won by Mr. Goren with the eight. East and West each discarding a small spade. Mr. Goren cashed his ace, king and queen of diamonds and on the third diamond, West discarded another spade.

Mr. Goren discarded two hearts and a small spade from dummy. East followed with three diamonds but now had the diamond suit stopped.

Mr. Goren had a perfect count on the hand. With five spades in the West hand and three in the other, Mr. Goren reasoned that the chances were five to three that West held the king of spades, and therefore his spades would lose, but he saw that he had a squeeze on the West hand if this were true.

He therefore played his nine of clubs, West was forced to discard a spade, the club was overtaken in dummy. The seven of clubs was led from dummy, the five of spades discarded by the declarer and West was helpless. He could not throw the jack of hearts or dummy's ten would be good, so he let go his ten of spades.

Mr. Goren's next lead was the jack of spades from dummy. He went up in his own hand with the ace of spades which caught West's king and he made his grand slam at no trump by winning the last trick with the queen of spades.

A well played hand for top score on the board.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

During the production at Twickenham Studio of "Puppets of Fate," Ben Welden was called upon to play that comic little innocent known to most of us as the "Jew" Harp. But although practice makes perfect Ben was not perfect enough when the film had to be shot. Fortunately Lester Gard, the make-up expert at the Studios, was discovered to be an old hand at playing this peculiar instrument and stepped nobly into the breach with a very nifty solo on the side of the set while Ben Welden, upon whom the camera was focused, went through the appropriate finger and mouth movements. That's how films are made!

"Puppets of Fate" opens at the Queen's Theatre on Thursday.

During the long run of the piece as a Broadway stage hit, it was discovered that women are among the first to applaud "The Front Page," the fast-moving newspaper thriller which is now showing at the King's Theatre.

"The Front Page" originally written for the stage by those "bad boys" of Chicago newspaperdom, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, has been brought to the screen by Howard Hughes and Lewis Milestone, director of "All Quiet on the Western Front." It is realistic to a degree, interest and revealing of the life and the dramatic exploits of reporters, who stop at nothing in their loyalty to their papers.

Naturally, it has been stripped of all convention and hokum, and unrelies on the screen all its boisterous and blustering splendor.

The unconventional love-story woven into this dramatic tale of back-stage newspapering may account, too, for the amazing feminine interest in "The Front Page." When Hildy Johnson, a star reporter, desperately in love with a girl, tries to quit the newsmongering "racket" so he can turn "respectable" and settle down, and his managing editor refuses to let him because he is too valuable a reporter, you have situations which appeal to every real human instinct.

Adolphe Menjou, in his first departure from the type of impersonations which made him famous, plays the part of Walter Burns, a ruthless, debonair managing editor.

"Mischief"

Ralph Lynn is certainly Britain's Prize Ass and long may he hold his title. He is as unique in his sense of humor as he is in his sense of mischief. In "Mischief," his latest film, directed by Jack Raymond, he is at his very best. The story by Ben Travers is a humorous affair and the situations give Ralph Lynn every opportunity of displaying his inimitable flair for giving us every ounce of comedy possible. For instance, when our friend visits a young lady in the country and is requested to put out a fire in the chimney, does he do it with charming grace? Not! But he does it with charming idiosyncrasy. He promptly falls off the roof, holding a tin of salt in his mouth, into the waterbutf! Life is a jolly business when we can see and hear Ralph Lynn on the screen.

Nagana

The debut of the glamorous Tala Birell in an American-made picture can be recorded as nothing less than a personal triumph for this exotic Viennese actress.

Miss Birell came to the screen of the Central Theatre yesterday in the Universal drama, "Nagana" and lived up to all the complimentary expectations we have heard regarding her beauty, her ability, and a certain strange quality which immediately sets her apart from other motion picture players. Judged by her work in "Nagana," she can hold her own with any actress ever imported from abroad. Melvyn Douglas, in the leading male role, is unusually good in his part, as is also Oswald Stevenson, whose brief role is one which remains in the memory.

"Nagana" is a veritable classic. If you enjoy thrills and breathless suspense, do not fail to see it.

"Faithless"

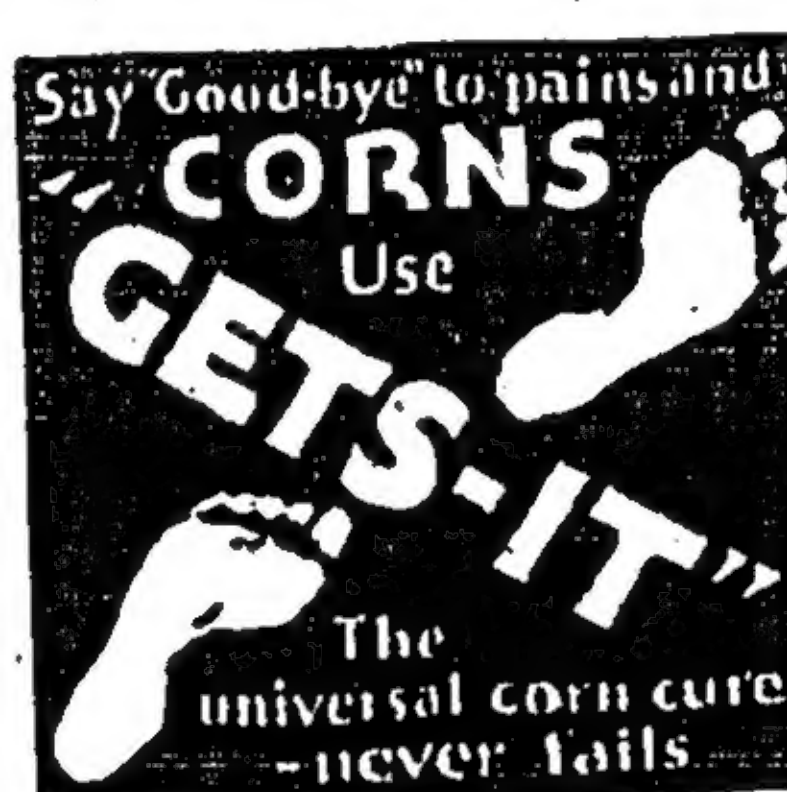

Tallulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery make their first appearance together as co-stars of "Faithless," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film opening to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre.

Needless to say, both Miss Bankhead and Montgomery are always at home in their roles, whether it is the luxurious atmosphere of a society drawing room or in the later scenes where both find themselves victims of a poverty for which their life has not fitted them.

Miss Bankhead, as Carol Morgan, is a young girl on whom wealth has been poured. But she has never been taught the adage about a "rainy day." When it comes, through the financial upheaval which has left many of the nation's wealthiest and without hope in the past few years, the girl goes down in the deluge, carrying her lover, Robert Montgomery, with her. Together, after many heart-breaks and discouragements, they try to fight upward.

In minor parts there is some excellent acting by Hugh Herbert, Maurice Murphy, Louise Clouser Hale, Anna Appel, Lawrence Grant and Henry Kolker.

Smooth dialogue, tasteful settings and photography, combined with the cast and discerning direction make this an absorbingly entertaining drama.

MAN WHO SAW RED

Eternal Triangle Case in Court

"When defendant saw complainant at the side of his wife's bed, he saw red, and got hold of two choppers and used them in whirlwind fashion" said Detective Inspector Chester-Woods before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, when a Chinese travelling trader, Lam Tal-yun, alias Lam Kan-kin, was charged with malicious wounding.

The wounded man was able to appear in Court, his left arm being bandaged while four injuries on his head and face were pointed out.

Mr. F. C. E. Rendall appeared for the defence, and asked for a date to be fixed.

His Worship decided upon Monday next at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. Rendall—Is it to be taken summarily?

The Magistrate—I don't know. Usually not with malicious wounding.

Inspector Chester-Woods said there were about four witnesses.

His Worship—Presumably it is for committal?

Insp. Chester-Woods—Yes, your Worship.

Mr. Rendall—Will your Worship consider the question of bail?

His Worship—Any objection?

Insp. Chester-Woods—It will have to be very substantial, your Worship.

Outlining the case, Inspector Chester-Woods said that defendant and the woman had been married for eight years. Last year, he and complainant were partners in an opium business, which was closed down after a Police raid. Defendant had occasion to warn the complainant to keep away from the woman. On April 16, defendant, in the course of his work went to the country, and it was alleged that during his absence, his friend visited his wife on three occasions at night. On April 23 defendant returned, and found him in the house. He saw red and used two choppers.

Insp. Chester-Woods mentioned that the case was in favour of defendant, as complainant would not deny that there was something wrong.

His Worship fixed bail at $2,500.
